American Troops Prove Superiority To Jap Warriors

By CLARK LEE.

WITH UNITED STATES INFANTRY FORCES, BATAN FRONT, Jan. 23.—(AP)—(Delayed)—American troops fought their third large scale ground engagement of the war early today, turning back a strong Japanese night attack with heavy losses to the enemy.

Dawn showed the ground in front of American barbed wire covered with dead and wounded Japanese, while the American lines remained intact.

This all-American unit thus continued to prove the superiority of American troops over the Japanese. Every time the two forces have met the Japanese have been defeated.

The morning's attack followed yesterday's daylong shelling and bombing of the American position by the Japanese. The enemy's 105-mm. field guns pounded the American lines from dawn to dusk while his planes droned incessantly overhead in varying number.

In one attack 17 divebombers simultaneously swarmed down on the Americans.

Attack Anticipated.

Enemy activity ceased at sundown but American commanders ordered their troops on the alert in anticipation of the first large Japanese night attack of the war. The attack came at 3 o'clock this morning, when Japanese estimated at not less than 1,000, who had crept through the underbrush toward American positions, opened fire with rifles, submachineguns and grenades, supplemented by the usual tossing of firecrackers.

American light and heavy artillery opened fire immediately plastering No-Man's Land with shells, while infantrymen jumped to their firing positions manning machineguns and rifles. The defenders located the advancing enemy by tracer bullets and by light exploding shells.

Only a handful of Japanese penetrated as far as the American positions, where they were quickly disposed of in hand-to-hand fighting.

Moaning of Japs.

Despite the Americans' deadly fire, the Japanese pressed their attack for nearly an hour before retreating to their own lines. When the firing ceased, the yells and moans of wounded Japanese were clearly heard outside the American barbed wire.

As the front quieted down, with the exception of occasional American artillery fire, the officer commanding this sector of General Douglas MacArthur's defense described the current fighting as "a combination of the positional fighting of the World War and old-time American-Indian warfare. There are occasional frontal attacks along definite lines, supplemented by infiltration of snipers." The Japanese especially are adept at sniping. Carrying only a handful of rice plus their arms, they sneak through the lines and hide high in the trees, and remain motionless for hours awaiting their chance.

Six Snipers Seized.

The average Japanese is not an expert marksman, but his snipers are specially chosen crack shots. This American unit flushed six snipers out of a single tree yesterday.

Americans, on the other hand, successfully have staged numerous night raids across No-man's Land. The major, although frequently wounded, refused to go to the hospital and led repeated raids to gather prisoners and information.

The American commander disclosed that the "first time American troops changed the Japanese enemy ran." This was while the American-Filipino troops were moving into position on the Batan peninsula several weeks ago. To prevent the isolation of other units, the commander said, the Americans fixed bayonets and "shrieked war whoops" and attacked the Japanese who fled in disorder.

American Troops Tough.

In a second engagement, however, the Japanese fought courageously, resisting yard by yard as the Americans successfully carried out line straightening operations.

American officers consider the Japanese Imperial Fourteenth Army a first-class body of troops. This army had been trained for the past 15 months in Formosa by General Masaharu Homma, obviously for the specific purpose of attacking the Philippines.

Present front line enemy troops average 24 years in age, having been trained in the jungles where they were used in the original landing operations and who are still used as occupational forces in various parts of the islands.

American troops in this area are tough and aggressive. The enemy is true of plucky Filipino soldiers who are holding neighboring sectors on a front where enemy aerial attacks and observation impose severe disadvantages on General MacArthur's forces.

Wounded Man Lynched

By Mob in Missouri

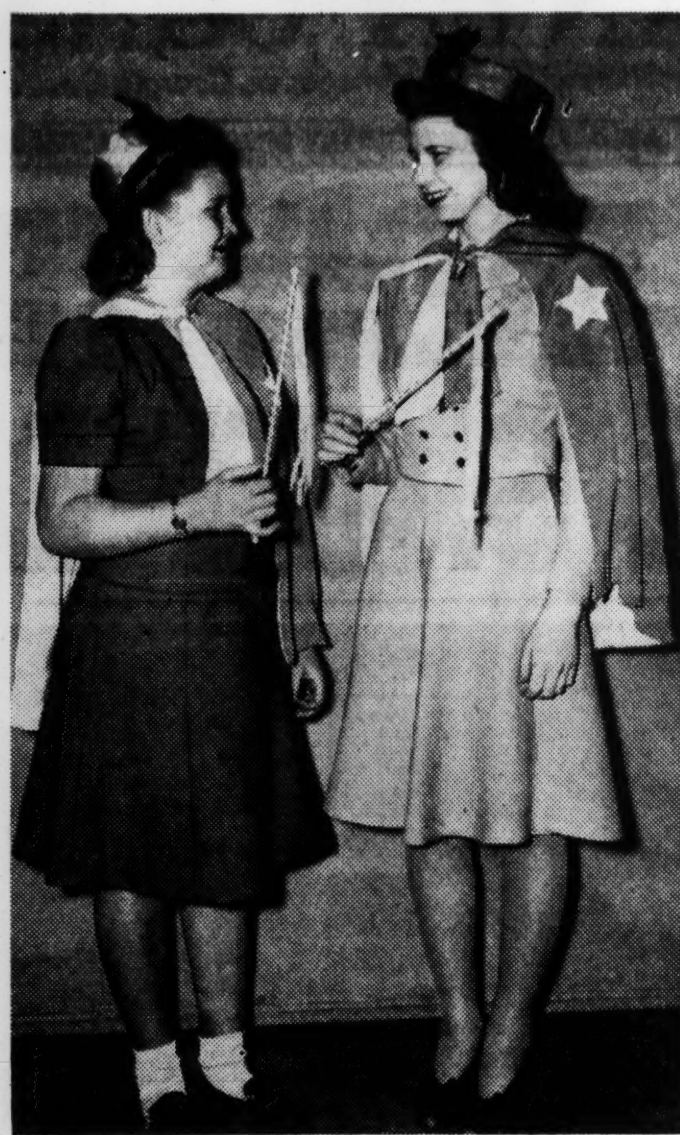

SIKESTON, Mo., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A critically wounded Negro, suspected of the attempted assault of a white woman, was taken from the city jail today today by a mob of more than 300 and lynched.

Harold Wallace, assistant chief of police, identified the mob victim as Cleo Wright, 30-year-old cotton oil worker.

He said Wright admitted he had stabbed and critically wounded the wife of an Army sergeant and after his capture had stabbed Hess Perrigan, a patrolman. In turn, Perrigan shot Wright three times.

fighters which attacked the big bombers.

Began Friday.

The action opened Friday afternoon (Atlanta time) when Dutch aircraft scored 12 direct hits with heavy and medium bombs on eight ships, the Java communique reported.

Speedily units of the United States fleet came steaming into the action—destroyers at first, then the powerful cruisers. With both shellfire and torpedoes, the American warships took toll of the hapless Japanese vessels.

Tonight's communique was believed to indicate the two-day-old battle in the waters between Borneo and Celebes still was continuing. The first official mention of eight ships had been left burning.

The following day the Dutchmen, reinforced by American airmen, blasted anew at the expedition as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek might be ready now to follow up their recent heavy raids at Hanoi, capital of Indo-China, with an overland assault opening up a second big front for the Japanese land forces in this corner of the continent.

The movements could, of course, involve only the Chinese forces reinforcing Burma, but in any case they were aimed at striking at the Japanese from the rear.

CHUNGKING, Jan. 25.—(AP)—American volunteer fliers fighting with the Chinese have shot down 190 Japanese planes against the loss of only five of their own craft in clashes up to Saturday, the Central Chinese news agency reported tonight in a Kuning dispatch.

The agency said this figure did not take into account considerable numbers of Japanese craft destroyed on the ground.

The Americans piled up their impressive score in operations over Burma, Thailand and Japanese-dominated French Indo-China.

Kent Coal Miners To Continue Strike

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Ignoring prison threats, 1,017 Kentish coal miners voted unanimously today to continue their strike for higher wages for which three of their leaders already are in jail.

At the largest miners' meeting ever held at Deal, the coal workers ignored requests of the colliery management to return to work. The ministry of labor has charged of conducting an illegal strike, and it was understood that these would be acted upon if the walkout continued.

The spokesman said the miners were being paid the equivalent of $1.40 a shift instead of their demand for $2.05 plus a war bonus of 25 cents for each ton of coal mined. The company said the miners were being paid $1.40 a day, plus allowances, with an additional 21 cents for each ton mined.

Allied Armies Said Massing Near Thailand

Widespread Air Attacks Are Carried Out During Weekend.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The United Nations forces lashed hard by air against Japanese positions in southeast Asia over the weekend and were reported massing for a major land assault at the rear of Japanese armies pushing overland toward the Allied bastion of Singapore.

A heavy force of RAF bombers raided Bangkok, capital of Japanese-occupied Thailand, inflicting widespread damage in a strong aerial onslaught, while by land Chinese troops were reported engaged in a great mass movement in China's southwestern province of Yunnan and along the Thailand frontier.

The British announced a withdrawal before Japanese pushing westward along the Burmese coast on the Gulf of Martaban, however, taking up new positions "somewhere in the Moulmein sector" east of the city. Military commentators cast no light on the fate of Moulmein itself.

Major Force.

The Chinese army in Burma was reported to be growing into a major force now, reducing the numerical superiority enjoyed by the Japanese in Thailand in the opening offensive.

In addition, unofficial information was received that the air force in Burma is being continually reinforced by newer models of fighters and bombers.

A communique issued by the British general headquarters here today said Chinese reinforcements had been pouring into Burma for the last few weeks. From here these troops could push into either Indo-China, also Japanese-occupied, or into Thailand, and pound at the rear of the Japanese forces working southward from there toward Singapore.

Mass Movements.

Chinese dispatches received here telling of mass movements of Chinese troops in Yunnan and along the Thailand frontier suggested the men of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek might be ready now to follow up their recent heavy raids at Hanoi, capital of Indo-China, with an overland assault opening up a second big front for the Japanese land forces in this corner of the continent.

The movements could, of course, involve only the Chinese forces reinforcing Burma, but in any case they were aimed at striking at the Japanese from the rear.

them with artillery, mortars, aerial bombs and machinegun fire while snipers in the trees tried to pick off outposts.

The beleaguered men got no sleep Monday night. Ordered to withhold their fire in order to conserve dwindling ammunition supplies, the Australians repelled repeated Japanese attacks with bayonets. Throughout the night reop snipers poured in fire and Japanese grenades burst around the exhausted men.

Ammunition Exhausted.

On Tuesday the situation was desperate. Food and ammunition were nearly exhausted and the Australians were carrying with them an increasing number of badly wounded. At this point Bennett ordered the battalion commanders to destroy their transport and fight their way back the best way possible.

At 6 p. m. Tuesday, wireless communications ceased in the midst of a message. Australian headquarters feared the worst. But at 8 a. m. Wednesday came the laconic message: "We now guard roadblock with guns and transport."

Bennett's face lit up with a grim smile as he showed us on the map that meant his men had fought their way through a seven-mile-long corridor of enemy machinegun nests.

He, meanwhile, had sent out a commando party armed with tommy guns to try to dislodge the Japanese holding a causeway head but the party failed to locate its beleaguered comrades.

Bennett Message.

Thursday morning Bennett radioed: "Regret there is little prospect of any success of attack to help you. Lloyd's party (the commando unit) if successful should have appeared before this. Twenty of your men and many Indians already returned via river to mine then back to road which presently our possession. You may at your discretion leave wounded with volunteers, destroy heavy equipment and escape. Sorry unable help after your heroic effort. Good luck. Gordon Bennett."

This message never reached the night batteries for their radio truck had failed.

On Thursday, RAF planes dropped medical supplies and food to the isolated men but the last chance to help them fight through the Japanese cordon had passed.

Isolated Fighting.

Isolated groups of Indians and Australians still are fighting their way to the British lines. Many of them are wounded. All are suffering from fatigue and hardship. But there has been not a word of complaint.

All the men I have talked to praised the Chinese, who guided how he and his comrades manned the radio until the batteries died. Then they blew up the equipment.

"Two of us got out but my 'cobber' (Australian slang for 'buddy') who was wounded was killed by a sniper," he related. "With 30 other chaps we made a break through a swamp peppered all the time by Japanese machineguns."

"The captain and 50 men reached the British lines after cutting and fighting their way for 50 miles."

British Forces Hold Grimly in Malaya Areas

Some Successful Counterattacks Carried Out During Day.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Relentlessly pressed by Japanese ground troops and continuously pounded by fighters and bombers in the air, British imperial forces grimly held their ground and even carried out some successful counterattacks in the sultry Malayan jungle 60 to 70 miles north of Singapore today.

The Australians, British and Indians fought with dogged persistence from positions which had not been generally changed in 24 hours, and were receiving strong support from their own air force which battled Japanese airmen and blasted tellingly at roads and intersections in the rear.

Today's communique said heavy fighting continued around the Batu Pahat anchor on Malacca strait to the west, 60 miles northwest of Singapore, where battle has raged for several days. It announced a failure, however, to hold the rugged positions around Parit Sulong just to the northeast, despite the valorous four-day fight of two encircled Australian battalions.

The Australians were completely cut off in the area and were supplied by air, the communique said.

Considerable numbers of them fought their way clear, cutting through seven miles of Japanese machinegun nests that had been scattered along the trails to reinforce road blocks.

Further east, however, the British carried out a successful counterattack north of Kluang, 50 miles north of Singapore.

Singapore passed the day in comparative peace from Japanese bombers.

HELP IS NEEDED

Now!

THIS TIME . . . THESE ARE Our BOYS!

Not the City of Atlanta—not the citizens of Atlanta—but the human HEART of Atlanta, the human feelings of every man, woman and child in Atlanta are being put to the test! When war struck savagely at us from the Pacific, Atlanta assumed a patriotic, humanitarian obligation of $320,000, as her just share in the War Relief Campaign of the American Red Cross. Atlanta must raise that amount to do her part in the vital work of this great organization.

"Organization"—now in January of 1942—is too harsh a term. The money you give to the Red Cross—and you will give liberally and willingly—is not given to anything so remote as an "organization" any more. It is money that will ease the pain and smooth the way of our own boys, our own Americans, our own Georgians, our own Atlantans, our own neighbors—and in many cases, our own flesh-and-blood!

Don't wait for a Red Cross worker to call on you—don't figure how little your conscience will let you give—SEND IN YOUR GIFT NOW—AND MEASURE ITS SIZE BY THE FULLNESS OF YOUR OWN HEART.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 26, 1942.

To Save Electricity

A spokesman for the Georgia Power Company has said it is doubtful if the change in time, which goes into effect on February 9, will effect any saving in power in so far as Atlanta is concerned.

One thing is sure, if business and schools of Atlanta do not change their hours of opening, in order to avoid the necessity of extended use of lighting equipment in the mornings, any saving will be extremely problematical.

A simple change, to make the day's activities in schools and business houses start one hour later, by clock time, than at present, would mean such an adjustment to the hours of daylight that, in so far as power for lighting is concerned, there would undoubtedly be a saving. For, by thus leaving the opening time the same, in so far as the sun is concerned, there would be one hour longer, in the evenings, when lights would not have to be turned on.

The people, generally, want the change. There is no logical reason for business to believe it will be the loser by opening at 10 o'clock, instead of 9, under the new time. For if all act uniformly, none will have advantage. And, for the few that may not fall into line, there will not be sufficient customers in the early morning hour to make it worth while—women are not coming downtown to do shopping before daylight.

Nationally, the change to daylight saving time is good. It will mean the saving of much power. Locally, it can mean the same thing if the city generally adjusts itself to the change.

For any arrangement of clock time is done solely that as much activity as possible may be thrown into the hours of daylight. It should be simple for a city of intelligent men to adjust their activities to daylight hours without working hardship on anyone.

Temporary Unemployment

By a seeming paradox, Washington last week was discussing plans of a 10,000,000-man Army and for increasing WPA rolls to care for men thrown out of work in the automobile factories because of defense production.

Unemployment is expected to jump by 1,700,000 this spring. The Army is expected to total 3,600,000 by the end of this year, an increase of approximately 2,000,000 during the year.

But the unemployment will be that of skilled men and will be absorbed as quickly as the automobile plants can be converted to war production. At the same time, many of the men going into the Army will come from the ranks of those who have never held jobs and who are not skilled. That is where the selective functions of the draft machinery should function efficiently. Even if the auto workers are unemployed, they constitute a valuable reservoir that will be trained in new skills necessary for war production.

The impact on our national life arising from a 10,000,000-man Army is difficult to comprehend, and the plans only serve to emphasize the need for a strict functioning of selective service. All men with skills will be needed for the factories unless and until women can be trained and are available to replace them. This will mean a tremendous drain upon manpower in other sections of national life, a manpower which must be utilized to the utmost. During the last war the Army totaled but 4,000,000 men and the tremendous mechanical resources of 1942 warfare did not then constitute the problem now confronting the country. For that reason the lessons of the last war cannot be a firm guide to the manpower necessities of this war.

An Avenue of Peace

The conference in Rio de Janeiro, as well as efforts of republics south of the border to attain a genuine measure of self-defense against possible attacks against this hemisphere by Nazi and Japanese, focuses attention on one of that defense's main arteries—the Pan-American highway. There is encouragement in the news that work on this highway is being redoubled. There is greater encouragement, however, in the fact the feeling seems to be very real among the Latin-American nations that this road will not be used against us.

This was the pledge made by Mexico's Minister of the Interior, Miguel Aleman, at the fourth Pan-American highway congress meeting in Mexico City recently, who said the road would be "an avenue of peace." The senator declared not a single mile of the highway in the Americas "will ever serve for the armed invasion of one of our countries by another," and pointed out the goal was mutual understanding and the exchange of ideas, a seeking of harmony in order to build a continental unity for the defense of culture and civilization.

That these material, moral and spiritual channels for cementing hemisphere solidarity do not happen by chance, but are the fruition of great democratic ideals is in itself worthy of note in these times of peril for all that the races of civilized men hold dear.

Women's Army Auxiliary

There is every likelihood that the bill, now before a house committee, to establish a Voluntary Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, will pass. Though the duties to which women who join this corps will be assigned will be of non-combatant character, it will, nevertheless, provide women of America with their first real opportunity to serve, side by side with their brothers, in the armed service of the nation.

Technically, the women of this corps will not be "in the Army," but they will be "with it." If the Army goes overseas, some of the women auxiliaries will go with it.

Army officers, explaining the desirability of such a feminine auxiliary, said there are some jobs, such as the highly important job of telephone operator, which women just naturally do better than men. It is for this type of duty the women are wanted.

Of the 12,000 proposed to be first recruited, 10,000 would be used in the airplane interceptor command.

The women would receive maintenance, wear uniforms, draw pay similar to that of the men in the regular Army. They would have their own officers, from major down, and pay would range from $3,000 a year for said majors to $21 a month for raw privates.

For the women who genuinely want to serve their country, who seek something new in experience, the auxiliary would seem to offer ideal opportunity. If the bill passes congress, due publicity will be given as to where and how to apply for enlistment.

Some Money in France

There is, it appears, no dearth of money in Occupied France for the collection of antiques of a lighter nature.

Some unnamed admirer of famed beds bid $706 in such coin of the realm as may now be available in Paris for the bed of Madame Dubarry, the mistress of King Louis XV. Now, King Louis XV was not even distinguished for having furniture named after him. And even though he did provide in magnificent fashion for his lights of love, beds of that period were not all that could be desired in the manner of comfort they provide.

Antiques being what they are, it may be assumed some serious-minded Nazi or war-enriched Frenchman has been made happy by his treasure, the bed of the mistress of a King.

Georgia Editors Say:

DON'T PLAY HITLER'S GAME
(From The Milledgeville Times)

The President, in the inspiring speech in which he set new goals for the national war effort, also called attention to still another answer to the question, "What can I do?"

He pointed to a field in which every man, woman and child can serve his country. It is the field of morale.

Be vigilant, he urged, against racial discrimination in any of its ugly forms. Be wary of any who try to breed mistrust and suspicion between one individual and another, one group and another, one government and another.

When you hear a person doing any of those things, the chances are that he or she is merely an innocent dupe. In that case merely make it plain that you do not agree, for the mere challenging of such statements is usually enough to shake them and rob them of their effect.

There is no place in great cosmopolitan America at any time for this group-against-group, race-against-race business at any time. Today we simply cannot afford it, for there lie failure and defeat.

The person who spreads this kind of talk may not be a deliberate Hitler agent. He is probably innocent. But what he does serves Hitler, and may be actually planned by Hitler's agents.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WHY THE U-BOATS? WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The presence of long-range Nazi submarines off our eastern and south Atlantic seaboard is being variously interpreted.

Aside from the general objective of doing as much damage to our shipping as possible, some compelling reason of strategy must have guided Hitler in sending them here. The North Atlantic, main sea lane of shipping traffic between the United States and Britain, has been amazingly free of sinkings for some weeks. Not even the Nazi propaganda machine has been making its customary exaggerated claims of successes there.

Yet it is in the North Atlantic area where all the heavy flow of traffic moves. That has been the prize hunting ground of Axis undersea craft in the past. The fact that the scene of operations has been shifted 2,000 miles farther away from home bases suggests some more important collateral objective.

AFTER CHURCHILL? One already hinted by the White House is that the Nazi subs were sent here for the primary purpose of intercepting Prime Minister Churchill on his return home. Certainly any vessel with the British government head on board would be regarded as a prize war target by the Germans.

Undoubtedly, Mr. Churchill's visit to the United States had something to do with the presence of the subs in our waters. It is no longer a military secret that the British battleship that brought him here came by way of Norfolk, where other British naval units have undergone repairs from time to time. Several of the sinkings which have occurred off our shores in the past week were in that vicinity.

But the Prime Minister defeated whatever plans or hopes the Nazis may have had regarding him by making the return trip to England by air. It is interesting to note that all of the sinkings in and south of the Norfolk area have been reported since Mr. Churchill's arrival back in England. Two or three attacks had been made earlier farther up the coast off Long Island, but it is possible these were purposely arranged to give the appearance of a concentration of undersea craft elsewhere.

BIGGER GAME ELSEWHERE Because of the scarcity of shipping along our South Atlantic coastal waters, there would seem to be no good reason for sending a fleet of submarines more than 3,000 miles for operations there. Tankers constitute the chief traffic, which explains why most of the vessels sunk have been of that type. The continuous passenger and freight service, such as rendered by the ill-fated City of Atlanta, is relatively unimportant. There is much bigger game to be sought farther north.

Another explanation advanced is that Hitler was trying to influence the deliberations of the 21 Latin-American nations' meeting at Rio de Janeiro. By putting on a show of strength at our very front door, he may have hoped to intimidate our South American neighbors and dissuade them from making common cause with us against the Axis. Competent foreign observers do not dispute that the Nazi mind works in such devious channels.

Here again the purpose failed, however, if this was one of the objectives behind the submarine mission. The Rio conference has pledged a break with Germany, Italy and Japan.

WAS IT AID TO JAPS? The final reason advanced is linked with war developments in the Pacific. As an inducement for Japan entering the war when she did, Hitler, our officials believe, must have pledged the fullest sort of co-operation as a means of keeping our hands tied in the Atlantic. With all of their treachery and cockiness, it is inconceivable that the Japs would have been foolhardy enough to precipitate a clash with us without some assurance of diverting happenings in the western theater of operations.

What Hitler is now doing, according to this thesis, is an attempt to make good on his pledges to the Tokyo government. By sending a large fleet of long-range submarines to our coast, he hopes to divide our fleet, making it necessary to keep as many naval units in the Atlantic as we can spare. Obviously we cannot afford to concentrate everything in the Pacific when a wholesale attack against our shipping is threatened all along the Atlantic seaboard.

ASTONISHING NUMBER The number of Nazi subs which are supposed to be lying off our coasts will be surprising when it is known. Even before Mr. Churchill left, the Navy, through its sound-detecting devices, had evidence of a considerable force. Someone has described them "as thick as catfish."

Generally they are reported to be of the 1,500 to 2,000 tons displacement type, with a cruising range of 15,000 miles. Deducting the 6,000 miles required to get over here and back, this gives them an operating range within our water of 9,000 miles before returning for refueling—enough to keep them going for about two months.

NAVY AT WORK The Navy is known to be getting in some good work among them. Probabilities are that they have been thinned out considerably already. At the proper time an announcement may be expected as to how many we have accounted for. We have adopted the same policy as the British, of course, in not revealing our successes as we go along. If we announced sinking those assigned to operate off Cape Hatteras, others would be sent to take their place. As it is, the Germans may know nothing about it until the craft fails to show up in allotted time.

While any one of the several reasons suggested may have prompted the Nazis to send over the sub mission, chances are, as our officials see it, that they were guided by a combination of all three—plus the overall aim to bring the war close to our borders.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

I see where the United Brewers Industrial Foundation, meeting in Chicago, has reappointed Judge John S. Wood as state director of the Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee of Georgia. Which is a good thing and something for which all Georgians may honestly give thanks.

For Judge Wood, through the organization he heads, has done a powerful lot of good work for the state. And, now with all the excitements and activities of war upon us, it is more vital than ever this good work continue. The primary object of the organization is to see that retail handlers of beer observe the law, maintain thoroughly respectable and established standards, and in all ways, do not conduct their places in manner apt to bring beer, as a beverage, into disrepute.

Judge Wood has, in numerous instances, been the first to call on law enforcement authorities to suppress places that are not properly behaving and he has recommended the withdrawal of license from many such establishments.

I am aware there is wide difference of opinion regarding the value of beer as a beverage. Myself, I consider it harmless as a drink for intelligent people. Brewers contend it is of high food value and I know many doctors who recommend it to certain types of patients.

On the other hand we all know the extremists, the fanatic reformers who are always trying to run other folks' affairs, who hold fast to a belief that beer is a concoction invented in hell and purveyed by individuals who always wear hats, in order to hide the devil's horns sprouting on their heads.

But, whether you approve or disapprove the malt beverage, you can't help but approve the work done by Judge Wood and his organization. For that work is aimed directly at better law observance, better morals and all-around better conditions in Georgia generally.

And I say his work is more important than ever, now, because a large part of it is devoted, these days, to seeing that conditions remain as good and as decent as possible in the vicinities of the various Army establishments we now have in Georgia.

Business Effectiveness Reduced 15 Per Cent. It has been stated that the automobile, as it is used in modern America, represents 60 per cent of our entire industrial and commercial economy. This is based upon an analysis of the percentage of business done which depends upon automotive transportation, including all the direct services to autoists and the services to trade by salesmen and others who could not operate—or at best in much curtailed areas—without cars.

The Gallup Poll last week announced the result of a poll, conducted in car use, on the question, "What proportion of auto driving will you cut out as a result of the ban on new tires and new cars?"

The average of all the replies from all classes and types of auto users, was 25 per cent.

Thus, if you use the two figures given above together, you find that auto economic status will be cut one-fourth. Which leaves it representing but 45 per cent instead of 60 per cent.

Again, this analysis of statistics, means our commercial and business activity is to be reduced 15 per cent because of the curtailment in car use.

It must be remembered, however, that the 25 per cent reduction in car use consists mostly of unnecessary usage, such as aimless joy rides on Sunday, driving to and from work when street cars or buses will take you just as well. Such driving means next to nothing to the economics of the nation. Thus the actual reduction in business efficiency, will be far less than 15 per cent.

And I am, frankly, of the opinion that some of the curtailment made necessary will be a good thing. Such as fewer store deliveries, less door-to-door retailing, etc.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Joe Louis Admirable NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—I covered professional and amateur sport throughout the era of wonderful nonsense when we gave ourselves over to a passion for games and gain and met or observed all the great American athletes of the time, both men and women, ignorant and educated, the well-born and the lowly. There were many fine, clean characters among them of whom no disparagement is meant in observing that Joe Louis, the prize fighter, seems a distinct degree the most admirable. His virtue as a citizen and sportsman is accentuated because he is a Negro and risen from cabin poverty and it would be dishonest to deny that the merits of a conspicuously good colored man are overemphasized to the same extent that, in general, the faults of a disreputable one are overemphasized. But if Louis were a white, or, as Shreve might say, a pink, man he would nevertheless receive the recognition as champion of many other Americans, particularly of those who know him best.

Some years ago, when Louis was on his way up, the writers on the sport side wrote amusingly of his drowsy indifference and his frugality of words. He could drop asleep like a tired dog in from the field, all oblivious of the rabid crew around a fighter's camp on the day before an important fight or even a few hours before ring time. And when one asked a question, he gave a civil and sufficient answer, but in no more words than just enough.

This, for a time, was taken to mean that he was a dumb field hand, but that was an excusable error, because there had been no man like him before.

True, there had been dumb fighters with nerves so insensitive and with such limited imagination that they could snooze on the table of a smoky dressing room during the semi-final and so stupid that speech was a mental exercise. But the quality of the answers which Louis did return in so few words presently proved that he was uncommonly wise, for they always covered the ground or frankly and briefly hedged the question. He used words to express thought, but not to make idle conversation, and he expressed his thoughts efficiently and to the point.

No other sportsman on the professional side has ever matched the unqualified generosity of Louis in risking his championship, a business asset of great value, in his recent fight with Buddy Baer and donating, entire, his share of the purse to the Navy's relief fund. Other men have given their lives, including the almost forgotten but knightly young American, Lieutenant Calnan, of the Navy, who had been selected to personify the ideal of American sport in Olympic games and was lost in the wreck of a dirigible. Others have been and others will be lost in battle, but Louis, too, is a soldier now, and if he is withheld from the realities and especially protected from the normal risks of war to be exploited as a money-raiser and morale builder that course will be inconsistent with his conduct and remarks to date and the serious fault of the Army, itself. The morale of the rest of the world is not the whole purpose of the man defeated. The Army, not Louis, will make the decision here.

Men wonder at the instinctive tact and sporting decency of Louis' little, breathless comments on the air when a fight is just over and he has won, or lost, not at all because he is a Negro, but because he has never been heard to complain, explain or withhold comment such as this:

Yes, he shook me up pretty bad there in the third.

He Paid Schmeling Max Schmeling struck him an unintentional foul after the bell which started his collapse in their first fight, but he made no issue. But, for contrast, when he unintentionally fouled another opponent, the white boy howled with outrage. The only opponent he had reason to hate, personally, racially and politically, was Schmeling, who had said that he was a member of the master race, that Louis recognized this and that therefore "the naysayer" knew he could not win.

For that, Louis briskly and fiercely knocked Schmeling's body out of plumb like a bombed building with a right-hand smash to the spine and humbled him and his Fuehrer before the world in a very few minutes. But even then he did not gloat.

Louis is race-conscious and fights as a Negro, but some Negroes who aren't fit to carry his bucket, obstreperously attempt to capitalize his victories and fineness as being somehow, in part, their own. This, however, is not peculiar to Negroes. All breeds sullenly resent identification with the wrongs of any evil breed but insist on emphasis as distinctly racial the virtues and victories of their best.

But now, when Louis has already gone to work in new, and very different jobs.

One, a man over 50, is learning the mechanical care of Army trucks, and getting paid what he earns. That is just an example.

By the time your Uncle Sam swings into this job of war and war production, he'll be needing all his able-bodied nephews. There'll be work for all, then.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Friday, January 26, 1917:

"Aroused by the deplorable condition of the pavement on Peachtree street, from Five Points to Ivy street, and stirred by the numerous complaints made by citizens, members of its special committee of council and property owners along the great traffic artery of Atlanta, have begun to work together for immediate improvements."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

(Below are presented two letters from Atlanta boys at camp.)

DEAR MOM "After all the years I've been off to school it seems very natural to be writing you and the rest of the family like this, except for the fact that I'm sitting on my bunk and there's a lot of Army khaki in evidence."

"After four days in Jefferson barracks, which incidentally is a mud flat as far as the eye can reach due to the fact the buildings are being occupied before the carpenters have finished, I've got a more definite idea of what we are supposed to accomplish here. We're going through more of what the Army calls 'processing.' This is supposed to mean that you get more shoes, clothing, classification tests, and so on for seven days. After that you are meant to have 120 hours drill and then be shipped to training fields for the particular type of work you are qualified to do."

"Like most theories, however, when put into actual practice, the nice, sharp outlines of the scheme become a little blurry and here with men pouring in faster every day, the private gets the idea that the whole thing is in need of repairs. We get up before daylight and then all have a lot of fun sitting around telling jokes and waiting for the sun to come up, which is always a beautiful sight. Sundays it makes us very sad to have to miss it. Then we go down to breakfast and afterwards fall out in front of the orderly room at 7:30 eager to continue processing. This morning we waited until 9 o'clock, amusing ourselves by clapping our hands and stamping our feet, until the sergeant got his instructions, when we moved off briskly toward the south end of the base. The 2½-mile walk rolled off very quickly to the tune of "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," sung Jefferson style:

"Missouri is a hell of a state, Parley-vous.
Missouri is a hell of a state, Parley-vous.
Missouri is a hell of a state, Parley-vous.
The B— of the forty-eight,
Hinky dinky, parley-vous."

(Can't you just see them, swinging along, singing and having fun insulting the sovereignty of Missouri?)
"When we got to the south end, the sergeant parked us in front of a building while he went inside. Fifteen minutes later he came out and said, 'About face, forward march!' When we got back to the north end of the post we walked into another building and a doctor stuck a pin in all our fingers. Then we went back to the barracks and washed up for lunch."

"This afternoon we fell in at 12:30 and the sergeant marched us down to the supply buildings to get more clothes but we were a couple of companies too late and when we got into the fitting room around 3:30 I had a choice of size 42 trousers or of coming back tomorrow. I'm going back tomorrow."

"The whole thing is awfully funny. I laugh so much every day my stomach is sore at night and in spite of it all it's a swell Army. I wouldn't have missed being a private in the regular Army for anything I know. Everyone ought to try it once."

"The fellows are swell, too. The real American sense of humor only comes out in full force in the Army. I wish I could quote conversations that go on around me, but they are not admissible to polite society. Anyway you have to hear it to appreciate it."

"To answer an unspoken question, I'm all equipped and can't think of a thing at present that I need."

"Love to the rest of the family. JACK."

HELENA, Ark.

DEAR MOTHER "I received your letter and package this morning. Thanks a million for the cookies—all the boys in the room enjoyed them. They were really good—we have eaten them already. The hair brush is one thing that I really needed and the new one you sent me is fine."

"The school that I am at now is a primary air school. I started flying Tuesday and like it very much. There is one instructor to five boys and from now on I think that we will fly at least one hour every day. We have to have a total of 60 hours flying before we leave here and we only stay here for seven weeks or less. So far I have not had any trouble flying, and hope that I don't. Our planes are very slow and safe. We fly at about 100 miles an hour and land at about 50. Most of the primary training ships are a little faster, so I imagine that I am lucky to have something slow to start out in."

"The weather is much better than it was when I arrived. All the snow and ice has gone, but the ground is very muddy."

"Out here we get up at twenty minutes to six and have three minutes to get dressed and outside for roll call. Then we come back in the room after roll call and make our bed, sweep the room, dust, and get the room straight, and be ready to eat breakfast by ten after six. The sun does not come up until after seven. After we have finished breakfast, we go to three classes and then to athletics. After that we eat lunch, then fly all afternoon. We at supper at five-thirty and then study until quarter of nine. Between quarter of five and five of nine we don't have anything to do but take a shower, brush our teeth, shine our shoes, and be in bed with the light out at five of nine. Oh, I have to shine my shoes about ten times a day whether they need it or not. We are going all the time and land at about 50. Most of the primary training ships are a little faster, so I imagine that I am lucky to have something slow to start out in."

"The food here is really good. It isn't Army food, but the table is run by a civilian and he really feeds us good stuff. I drink a quart of milk every day and have just about quit smoking. I just don't have time to smoke. I think that I will get open post tomorrow and will get into Helena, but I am not sure."

"The watch that you and Dad gave me for Christmas is the one thing that I use most. I haven't had it off since I got into the Army. I don't know what I would do without it here. I don't need me a sweater because the government gives us one and then too we don't wear anything but what the government gives us."

"Did my bag arrive? Don't send the fruit cake because we can't keep cake in the room, and there is no place to hide it. Whatever food we have must be eaten before night. So you and Dad eat the cake."

"Tell Alberta hello and also tell her that I enjoyed the cookies very much."

"How are the children, and how are you and Dad?"

"Love, SIDNEY."

YOUR ARMY Last week I happened to be shown the two letters published above. Neither was written with any idea of circulation outside the family. As a matter of fact the two young men may not appreciate the fact they are published. Nevertheless, they seemed to me such fine letters and to be so typical of the spirit of your Army, that I obtained permission from their parents to publish them. There never has been anything wrong with soldier morale. The big trouble before, and now, is the apathy of the public. This apathy and lack of understanding has Washington gravely concerned. The first letter is from Jackson Dick Jr., son of Jackson Dick. The second is from Sidney Burroughs, son of Stiles B. Burroughs.

Democracy Really Works Only When Everybody Works At It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Because our country is so big, it has always been a land of sectional interests. The frontier settlers of the colonies often were compelled to unite and fight the Indians without official help because the officials and leading citizens lived in snug towns near the coast and felt no danger.

Whatever Atlanta and Fulton county decide to do about adjusting working hours to the new daylight saving time—which will put us an hour ahead of our old Central and another hour ahead of our new Eastern—will suit me. I just go along with the herd.

But if Atlanta doesn't decide to start work an hour later by the clock—I hope somebody comes out to my house and explains the situation to my dog Ding. And then visits a friend over on Lindbergh drive, just behind my two-by-four estate, and explains it to his rooster. And the expert might also go a few doors up Lindbergh and thence it out with a bunch of ducks which start quacking at dawn.

I have for years been an advocate of "fast time" and getting up early and getting off sooner, though I don't play golf. I rejoiced when Eastern time was adopted.

But I have observed that rising at 7 a. m. by our present time has meant setting an alarm clock. Not enough light comes through my boudoir windows to wake me. Even at 8 a. m. I've had to turn on a light to find my socks.

Far from me to throw a monkey wrench into Uncle Sam's machinery, but I just can't get it. Maybe because I'm dumb. Idea seems to be to save electricity. But what difference does it make whether you turn on your lights to cook breakfast and read the paper and then turn them off early that night when you go to bed. The meter will read just the same.

It will be better as spring approaches—and I wish she would grow longer. But if I have to get up an hour earlier than now I'll feel like a farm hand who is required to light a lantern and milk nine cows before he comes into breakfast—by lamplight.

My idea is to adopt the government's new time—if you must do so or interrupt the national schedule. That is, for you. As for me, I'm going to try to persuade the boss to let me report an hour later so I can get the sleep my system demands. Maybe that will work for you, too. Let's hope so.

Two Hours Earlier For Getting Up? Omigosh!

A wolf howl because buses and private cars had grabbed off their passenger traffic.

Along comes the rubber restriction, which may be expected to make a lot of travelers garage their cars and seek railroad tickets.

So the railroads announce raises in rates. And now Brunswick is kicking because the Southern has taken off all Pullman cars between Atlanta and that city—which means Sea Island Beach and St. Simons.

Oh well, I never tried to run a railroad, so I should refrain from comment. I suppose. They have their troubles, too.

Eatonville girl, student at the University of Georgia, went home for a visit and called at a drug store for her favorite brand of soap. And kicked about the price.

"I get it cheaper than that in Athens," she protested.

"What do you get it for in Athens?" inquired the druggist. "To wash with," said the girl. Which, the Eatonville Messenger thinks, was the "retort perfect."

Dawson County News tells of a woman who bought a bunch of defense stamps and explained—a woman must always explain—why she was investing.

"I've been saving up for a long time to get enough money to pay for a divorce," she said. "But I've decided I can stand Bill better than I can Hitler."

Just another tire shortage gag: Editor Bennis of the Butler Herald thinks the auto tag color combination fine. Says he: "Man will get red in the face from changing tires, while under the gills from exertion and blue because he can't get any more tires."

Editor "Country" Ham is sore. He says he had a birthday last week and only one store in town closed up—and it had a little writing on the door, signed by the sheriff.

No more girdles, rules the government, which is going to put many a woman in a mighty bad shape.

State WPA Offices Lengthen Hours

All WPA administrative offices in Georgia will remain open an hour longer each day beginning Monday, in keeping with the policy of federal agencies to lengthen hours of work for employees during the present emergency. Harry E. Harmon Jr., state WPA administrator, announced yesterday.

New hours for the WPA will be from 8:30 to 5:30 on week days and from 8:30 to 12:30 on Saturdays.

THE VALLEY.

I was writing about my visit to Rabun Gap in last Friday's column, but I didn't get through.

Truth of the business is, one would never get through writing about that lovely valley. Many of my readers have ridden through it on the highway from Clayton to Franklin, but it was only a glance from a swiftly moving automobile that you got. Your eye caught the rim of mountains, the expanse of valley land with Guernsey cows grazing on green grass, and plots of fine corn and cabbage; and maybe you managed to glimpse the school buildings, and the spire of the Baptist church.

That would be about all you could see in the minute or two that you were speeding along the asphalt highway.

You didn't know, did you, that leading back into the mountains are at least three prongs of the valley—Wolf Fork, Betty's creek, and Kelley's creek—and that numerous homes, most of them quite old homes, are situated on the roads that wind around these valleys? There are approximately 1,200 people living in the valley.

There you will find the purest Anglo-Saxon blood, just as you will find direct descendants of the pioneers all up and down the isolated regions of the Appalachian mountains.

Pastor J. F. Marchman made a census of the valley two years ago. He showed me the results of that census. Seven hundred and fifty persons were members of the three Baptist churches in the valley, or expressed preference for the Baptist faith; 260 were Methodists, or so inclined; and 60 were Presbyterians, or so inclined. The oldest Baptist church in the valley is Head of Tennessee, constituted in 1819. Wolf Fork and Betty's Creek churches were constituted later. Mr. Marchman is pastor of all three of these churches. Mr. Waldrip is pastor of the Methodist church, and Mr. Helm is pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Marchman took me into many of the homes. I wish you could see them—some of them log cabins, built more than a century ago. We visited a number of people 80 years and more old. It was simply a benediction to go into those quiet dwelling places and hear those grand old people speak in their gentle voices, and from the doorsteps of those homes look out upon the valley scenes of rich land, fine barns, cattle, sheep, and other livestock, and always the winding streams from the towering mountains.

I shall never forget such persons as Grandmother Mason, blind now for some years; Mrs. Sarah Dickerson, Miss Flora Norton, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Sarah Darnell, Mrs. Julia Grist, Mrs. Sally Powell, Abraham Keener, Mr. and Mrs. Zack Dillard, and many, many others. Nor shall I ever forget the younger men and women, and, best of all the children. There is no danger of race suicide in that valley. I visited the public school, at the invitation of Superintendent Floyd, and saw several hundred wonderful boys and girls; and for four days I spoke to the students at Rabun Gap-Nacoochee school, about which I wrote in last Friday's column.

Life flows richly and deeply in the valley at Rabun Gap—life at its best. They do not have very much money. They work hard for all they do have. But they have long ago discovered that life consists not in the mere abundance of things—that it is what we have in our hearts that finally counts.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Public Doesn't Mind Tire Ban

By GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 25.—Although few persons in the country ever dreamed two or three months ago that the United States would face drastic auto tire regulation, the tire rationing program has penetrated into the far corners of the country and the necessity for it has been accepted by the public to an amazing extent.

More than 99 per cent of the car owners of the country know about tire rationing, and 81 per cent accept it without question as necessary, a poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows.

This situation is in sharp contrast to the public reaction last summer to the curtailment of gasoline sales—a regulation which many citizens thought unnecessary at that time.

Not only do Americans accept the necessity for government rationing of rubber, but most of them accept it as a necessary part of the war effort, either for two or more years, or for the entire duration of the war.

"How long do you expect the government regulation of tire sales will be in effect?"

Forty-four per cent said "for the duration of the war," with an additional 12 per cent saying 2 to 5 years or more. Only 10 per cent thought it would last less than one year.

"Tire rationing will be a distinct problem in several well-defined types of situations. First, its effects will be most serious on the man who must use a car in his business.

There are many traveling salesmen working rural and backwood neighborhoods by automobile who will find themselves out of work.

Another group which will be vitally affected are people who live in rural and remote places.

Many farmers interviewed point out that, although they could switch from auto to horses, they would waste a great part of the day traveling that way.

Representative Negro citizens of Fulton county, at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium yesterday, elected committees for defense work among Negroes.

Chairman of the men's committee is the Rev. M. L. King. Other members are W. H. Aiken, C. A. Scott, the Rev. D. G. Babcock and the Rev. C. N. Ellis.

At a meeting in Center Hill a committee was chosen to organize that zone with George Johnson as chairman; Hugh G. Adams, vice chairman and E. B. Storey, secretary. Claude Mills was elected zone chairman in Adamsville.

"Herd up" that used stove, heater, fur coat, radio, gun, etc., and "corral" cash by advertising them in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

"At 7:55 on Sunday, December 7, 1941, Hawaiian time, I was just leaving the house when I saw the first Jap dive bomber drop its first bomb over Pearl Harbor, alongside which we live. I yelled to Graze something to the effect that 'This is war—those are Japs.' I drove madly to my position and got my battalion in action, firing everything we had at the Jap planes as they swept over Hickam. Eight bombs fell on an area less than a city block from where we were firing. A bomb with my name on it dug a crater 20 feet wide, 10 feet deep, about 12 feet from me, killing one of my gunners—but I was lucky and got only a few scratches and three broken ribs."

Allen's Agency Breaks 70-Year Record for Month of December

State Agents Gather Here In Annual Meet

Guests of Atlanta Agency, Headed by Luther E. Allen.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.
Between 40 and 50 state agents for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company gathered in Atlanta for their annual sales and business meeting at the Biltmore hotel Saturday.

They came to Atlanta as the guests of the Atlanta agency, headed by Luther E. Allen, general agent. After the morning session a luncheon was held at noon, and in the evening a most elaborate dinner was enjoyed.

The meetings were presided over by Mr. Allen, and a number of awards were made to agents who accomplished outstanding work during 1941 and were leaders in volume of production.

The 10 agents who were top leaders in paid-for business during 1941 were given special awards for their work, and were highly complimented both by Mr. Allen and their state co-workers.

The 10 leaders were:
George M. Venable, LaGrange.
Sam H. Rumph, Atlanta.
Harry Steinau, Atlanta.
P. D. Reeser, Marietta.
Willard Murphy, Macon.
Ed L. Fryer Jr., Rome.
E. Stanley Murphy, Barnesville.

B. R. Bloodworth, Athens.
Daisy E. Bagwell, Atlanta.
Fred O. Darby, Albany.
Mr. Venable was the leader in volume of new business, while Mr. Fryer was leader in number of lives insured.

It was brought out during the sessions that all records for December during the more than 70 years of the company's operation in Georgia were broken, and that the entire year, as a whole, was one of the best for the company.

In a bulletin issued to the agents

TEN TOP LEADERS—Here is shown the ten most productive state agents for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company who, with many other agents, attended the annual business meeting of the agents Saturday at the Biltmore hotel. They were the guests of the Atlanta agency, headed by Luther E. Allen, general agent. Left to right, seated, *Harry Steinau, Ed L. Fryer Jr., Luther Allen, general agent; Daisy E. Bagwell, B. R. Bloodworth. Standing, *George M. Venable, Sam H. Rumph, P. D. Reeser, Willard Murphy, Fred O. Darby. Those marked () also members of Leaders' Round Table of Georgia for 1942.

at the close of the year, Mr. Allen said: "December, 1941, is the best month for submitted applications in the history of this agency, which covers a period of over 70 years."

After the Saturday evening dinner a number of short talks were made by the agents, all of which had an enthusiastic tone of prophecy for a most excellent business during the coming year. They declared the outlook for new business was good. Details and plans were freely discussed for the year ahead.

Mr. Allen made the principal talk of the evening, in which he not only complimented and thanked his state agents for their good work, but assured them of every co-operation possible in the future.

"The war in which we are engaged is a war to maintain democracy," said Mr. Allen. "Democracy is made up of families—of homes. Life insurance is probably the greatest factor yet devised for the maintenance of homes."

This statement is in keeping with the timely slogan used by the Atlanta agency—"Life Insurance is Home Defense Work for Victory."

Mr. Bowden and all other officers of the concern have had several years of automobile experience, and having been in business in Atlanta since 1921, and having built a reputable and progressive business in the automotive field as specialists in this type of work, are long experienced and entirely capable of handling all phases of the reconditioning of automobiles.

distributing service to place in Atlanta homes samples of various kinds of printed matter, samples or any other material that can be delivered by hand into the homes of the city.

This type of work is not a sideline with this concern, it has been pointed out by Mr. Crumley. "We do only one thing, and that is to see that every piece of printed matter or every sample of any kind entrusted to our care is properly put into the home, and we believe in doing that well," said Mr. Crumley.

The company has large and roomy quarters at 75 Hunter street, S. W., and for the last 16 years this concern has had charge of the semi-annual distribution of telephone directories, one of the largest distributing tasks any concern could undertake.

"We do distributing for Atlanta's largest department stores—the chain stores and independent merchants, of the city," says Mr. Crumley.

"Also, we do a very great deal of national advertising—distributing booklets, circulars, albums, samples, etc., for national advertisers all over the country. If you want to reach the homes of Atlantans—systematically and correct—call this old and dependable house-to-house distributing concern.

Water Used for Beer, Ale Filtered by Atlantic Brewery

Quality of water is of vital importance—whether it is for human consumption in its natural form or for use in manufacture. The limestone water of the Kentucky Blue Grass raises the nation's finest horses.

Good water is one of the reasons why the Atlantic Company makes beer and ale considered so highly by consumers. The Chattahoochee river water, as it comes through the mains, is almost chemically pure—so free from minerals and other elements that it can be used for filling storage batteries. Most cities must use distilled water.

Raid Shelters May Be Used For Parking

Conversion After War Seen as Solution to Congestion.

Downtown air raid shelters that may be converted into parking areas after the war were seen here yesterday as a solution to the city's ever-growing traffic problem.

This double-barreled use for shelters was advanced in a report by Robert F. Maddox, president of the Central Atlanta Improvement Association, which is now studying the situation with a view to further action.

The air raid shelters now and parking spaces later idea was proposed, according to the report, by W. C. Cram Jr., executive vice president of the association, and a member of the Georgia Engineering Society's Committee for National Defense, an advisory body to the Georgia Council for National Defense.

Pointing out the importance of the city traffic department, the report said "it is responsible for the fullest use of the streets and adjacent properties and the very lives of the citizens of Atlanta."

In this connection, the report further stated the association is working with city authorities in seeking a solution to the downtown traffic problem.

The report also disclosed that the association is studying the problem of smoke abatement, working in cooperation with the City Smoke Abatement Bureau, with a program for abatement being planned in collaboration with city officials.

This study, the report said, deals mainly with increased use of mechanical firing devices of all kinds. The group also is studying sales of downtown real estate, for reference regarding variance of real estate sales values in the downtown section, and has also recommended a reduction of one mill on the local tax rate.

Canada Rations Sugar Purchases

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(P)—Canada announced the rationing of sugar tonight, effective immediately, and set a limit of three-quarters of a pound a week for each person.

The Canadian action followed the Washington announcement last night that rationing of sugar would start soon in the United States with consumers there to be held to about a pound a week.

Domestic households will be limited to a purchase of a two-week supply at a time. Not more than a two-week supply may be kept in the pantry.

Purchases will be in the usual way and there will be no coupons, stamps or tickets.

Requirements of manufacturers, hotels and other establishments will be controlled by the Sugar Administration and provision for them will be made, it was announced, in accordance with circumstances.

Vigil in the Dark Traps 2 Youths

Vigil in the dark resulted in the capture early yesterday of two youthful suspects at the Atlanta Boys' Club.

W. D. Brazzell, club employee, told police the clubhouse at 92 Pryor street, S. W., had been burglarized three times recently. So he decided to do something about it.

He turned out all the lights and seated himself in the main clubhouse. Just after midnight, he heard a kitchen window being raised, and a few moments later two small figures moved stealthily into the room.

Brazzell switched on the lights. The boys made a dash for freedom, but he had them. Brazzell fired a shot from a pistol into the floor. He held the boys until police came. The boys were charged with suspicion and sent to the juvenile home.

Soldiers in Philippines To Be Honored by Bing

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—(P)—At the request of General Douglas MacArthur, Singer Bing Crosby is dedicating part of his radio program next Thursday night to soldiers in the Philippines.

One of the songs was quickly decided upon. It will be "The Caissons Go Rolling Along," official song of the Field Artillery, which was written in the Philippines by the late Brigadier General E. L. Gruber.

positive course was taken, and ships were actually moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic and that practically no increases were made in the Army and Air Corps defenses."

Nothing Done.
"It would appear in the absence of any facts to the contrary that nothing was done to change the situation in the Pacific," Walsh's statement continued. "If the Army and the Navy had been materially strengthened during this time, it might not necessarily have prevented the dereliction of duty that the board finds, but it would have given notice to the Army and Navy that the government at Washington was preparing a strong, determined fighting defense."

Similarly Senator Brooks, Republican, Illinois, demanded why Stimson and Knox "consented to the sending of our military and naval equipment to other countries and other parts of the world when they knew war with Japan was inevitable and our most important outpost was inadequately supplied with personnel, material and equipment to put it on a war footing," as stated in Justice Roberts' report.

Senator LaFollette, Progressive, Wisconsin, told reporters the report showed an "unconscionable lack of co-operation" between the Army and Navy commands that should prompt congress to a "thorough exploration of the availability of some consolidation in the defense organization."

LaFollette said it should be noted, however, the inquiry board found United States forces at Pearl Harbor did not suffer sufficient losses. That they were not sent additional material might have led the commanding officers to conclude Washington authorities did not expect an air attack on Pearl Harbor and this may have contributed to their "competency," LaFollette said, adding:

"I don't think you can overlook the fact that some of the responsibility for this thing was right here in Washington."

Impartial Resume.
Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the House Military Committee, told reporters he thought the commission's report was a "judicious, impartial resume." Then speaking of the report's references to the warnings given Kimmel and Short, May added:

"The warnings should have been enough to put those two gentlemen on the alert, yet they apparently failed to collaborate. I don't think they should be excused."

Another member of the House Military Committee, Representative Short, Democrat, Missouri, asserted "it is high time we are getting rid of these incompetents, not only in the military branches but in all the defense agencies."

Adding that "someone was certainly asleep in Hawaii," Short said "those that were should not only be relieved of their commands—they should be court-martialed."

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, said the report should be turned over to the Military and Naval Committees of both houses for intensive study and any recommendations they might make for changes in the military setup.

"This report opened up a dark page, the blackest in the history of the Army and Navy," George declared.

Not Mentioned.
Kimmel and Short were relieved of their commands a few days after the Pearl Harbor attack. Another officer, Major General Frederick L. Martin, was relieved of command of the Hawaiian Air Force. The commission report did not mention him.

Under Army and Navy regulations, the two officers may be dismissed from the service by the President for "dereliction of duty." They would have the right, in such case, to appeal the order to a court-martial. Neither the White House nor the Army or Navy Departments has given any indication of intentions.

In view of the fact the investigating board made no reference to General Martin, there was speculation that he might be returned to active command. In its concluding paragraph, the report had this to say:

"Subordinate commanders executed their superiors' orders without question. They were not responsible for the state of readiness prescribed."

Other Members.
In addition to Roberts, the members of the commission, appointed by President Roosevelt on December 18, were Admirals William H. Standley and J. M. Reeves, both retired; Major General Frank R. McCoy, retired, and Brigadier Gen-

Final Passage Of Price Bill Is Seen Today

Speedy Enactment Expected After Weekend Parleys.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(P)—Price control legislation appeared set for speedy enactment tomorrow as a result of weekend conferences among congressional leaders.

Virtually no one was satisfied entirely with the compromise measure worked out by a joint senate-house committee but it was indicated today that a general agreement had been reached and that it should not be delayed any longer.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, whose amendment linking farm price ceilings to urban wages was thrown out by the conference committee, said he would do nothing to delay or defeat this measure, "but I'm going to let the country know what this bill does not do."

"It is not a price control bill and it is not an anti-inflation bill," he asserted. "It makes absolutely no attempt to control commissions, fees, industrial profits, inflationary costs of war contained in war contracts, nor industrial wages."

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley, predicting quick approval, told reporters, however, that "despite some of its shortcomings the whole thing is a pretty good bill."

There was some opposition in prospect in the house which will act first on the compromise.

Representative Wolcott, Republican, Michigan, said he would ask that it be rejected. He protested elimination of a house provision creating a special review and appeals board with power to supersede any price-fixing orders. He also objected to a provision for licensing business which was included in the compromise after being rejected by the house.

The measure empowers an administrator to put price ceilings on commodities and over rents in defense areas. However, there are various restrictions as to how low ceilings may be set on farm products.

Robert Burns Club Honors Great Poet

Celebration of the 183d anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns was held Saturday night by the Burns Club at its cottage on Alloway place, with William S. Culbertson, of the United States Diplomatic Service, being principal speaker.

Mr. Culbertson pointed out that besides being one of the greatest poets, Burns was one of the greatest exponents of democracy of all time. He related how Burns at one time contemplated coming to America, as some of his kinsmen lived in Pennsylvania.

Scotch songs were led by O. R. Cooper and James Ivey. Walter McElreath was chairman of program arrangements. Knox Walker, president of the club, presided.

Buyers to Study Atlanta Market

Dedicated to "the interests of the merchants in the southeast" for the purpose of giving them the opportunity of getting more "intimately acquainted with the abilities and possibilities in the Atlanta market," Atlanta Style and Market Week will be observed here February 2 to 7, Harry Siegel announced yesterday.

Siegel, executive secretary of the Atlanta Manufacturers and Distributors Association, said thousands of southern buyers will head for Atlanta during market week. He said Guy Blalock, president of the association, was extending a welcome to every merchant in the southeast and many concerns have made plans to reserve parking space at no cost for the visitors.

WAGA Building 3 New Transmitter Towers

Don Isel, manager of radio station WAGA, announced yesterday that the station had begun work on the three new towers and a transmitter building authorized by the FCC to step up power of the station to a frequency of 590 kilocycles with 5,000 watts power, day and night.

The new transmitter house and towers are being located on a 51-acre plot on North Druid Hills road near LaVista road.

Farmers in Fulton To Aid Food Drive

Fulton county farmers participating in the food for victory program of the Farm Security Administration have each agreed to raise a minimum of one brood sow, 50 baby chicks, two acres of wheat where practical, one-half acre of food crops per person in family and one acre of sorghum, FSA Supervisor Augustus P. Jones said yesterday.

The FSA, he added, will make loans to farmers unable to get credit elsewhere to finance the new minimum food production quotas. Meetings of FSA borrowers have been held at Alpharetta, Fairburn, Palmetto and Roswell to discuss procedure.

Diane Tells Linda Greg Is Coming Home

SYNOPSIS. Linda Phillips, an attractive stenographer in Prairieville, has been engaged for four years to Kyle Norman, whose apparent inability to hold down a job has postponed their marriage several times. Linda craves excitement. She and Sally Barnes, a friend of school days, spend a week-end with Diane Frazier, a fashion artist in Chicago. At a cocktail party Linda meets Greg Hollister, a chemical engineer. They are attracted to each other instantly. Soon after her return home, Greg visits her. Sally and her husband, Hugh, a banker, give a dinner dance for Linda and Greg. Linda meets Steve Baridon, a writer, who abandoned his career because Brenda, his wife, jilted him. Linda is alone with Greg for a while, but his attitude has changed. Reluctantly the next day Diane informs Linda that Greg doesn't love her, that he has left for South America and that it was understood he would marry Diane. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. Presently Steve arrives, and when he hears what has happened he searches for Linda and finds her. She was contemplating suicide. He tells Linda to get a job and to continue writing a book on the family farm and older jobs that she had held. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

Diane pretended not to notice. She busied herself lighting a cigarette. "He's been doing marvelous work in South America. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. Presently Steve arrives, and when he hears what has happened he searches for Linda and finds her. She was contemplating suicide. He tells Linda to get a job and to continue writing a book on the family farm and older jobs that she had held. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

There was a roaring in Linda's ears. She felt sick and dizzy, and her only thought was to escape from Diane's shrewd eyes—to escape to the peace and blessed forgetfulness the farm offered. Linda forced a smile to her lips, forced her voice to be as casual as

THE BRIGHTER SIDE—By Damon Runyon

Coffee and Doughnuts for the Sailors

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—"Bundles for Bluejackets" is the title of a splendid war enterprise among the ladies out here that will probably be nationally emulated before long, especially in coastal communities. It may be described briefly as canteen work among the men of the Navy.

Its efforts are somewhat similar to those of the Salvation Army during World War I. Of all the organizations that purported to do something for the service men in that war, the Salvation Army remains the fondest memory of the veterans. The "Bundles" job, always functioning practically and with none of the commotion and publicity that characterized other war work outfits, "Bundles for Bluejackets" supplies the Navy men of the Los Angeles harbor area with refreshments when they come and go on their various tasks at night. "Bundles" gives out coffee and cocoa and doughnuts and cigars and the sailors who are right now about the hardest worked men in the United States express themselves as most grateful.

With all due respect to the California climate, it gets pretty cold out on the water o' nights and a good slug of good hot java cheers a chilled sailor no little. Incidentally, "Bundles" is the first movement we ever heard of that has special reference to the sailors, the soldiers usually get most of this sort of attention. You might think that the United States government with all the billions it is appropriating for defense would make provision for the very things that "Bundles" is doing, but it seems that the government takes little account of creature comforts for its men over and above the old routine. The lads have to pay for any extras out of their own pockets and often even then the extras are not available, especially in time of war.

Thus, such work as "Bundles" is doing is highly necessary and it has the additional value of producing personal contacts and interest in the service men among the civilians. "Bundles for Bluejackets" is the idea of Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, wife of the movie producer and many Diane had been. "I think," she said lightly, "that's a grand idea." Driving back to the farm, Linda's joy at being once more on a friendly basis with Diane was overshadowed by a new and nameless fear.

What would it mean to face Greg Hollister again as Steve Baridon's wife? How would it affect the lives of Steve, of Diane, and—most importantly—of Greg, himself?

Steve returned home the following evening, tired and harassed after repeated sessions with his publisher. Laughing a little at himself, he said, "I probably would not have written the book if I'd known what I was getting into."

"Nonsense," Linda retorted spiritedly. "You're loving every minute of this, Steve Baridon, and well you should. Imagine being a successful novelist. I—I'm terribly proud of you."

They were seated in the library enjoying coffee and after-dinner cigarettes. Linda looked small and earnest in a gown of soft white crepe, her hair brushed high on her forehead. Suddenly Steve, with a little grimace, handed her a box, and Linda opened it to reveal a beautiful sapphire bracelet nestled in a bed of satin. Tears filled her eyes as she stared down at it, and she was unable to speak naturally.

"It's so beautiful. I don't know how to—"

"That's a thank-you for those kind words, lady."

"Oh, but I didn't—"

"You've had more to do with it

But we sure could make expenses if we could get the enemy to play 'em.

than you think," Steve answered hesitantly, wondering whether he should say all that he had meant to say. The speech he had rehearsed as the plane winged homeward from New York seemed stilted. "If I hadn't known your help and faith—"

"But you've been so generous already," Linda protested. "I have so many lovely things, furs, jewels—even my own car!"

"You deserve much more," they sat looking at each other in self-conscious silence, each striving to speak. Then she announced gravely:

"Greg Hollister is coming home next week." She had not meant to tell him, but the words came out in a rush, and Linda didn't know there was a lilt in her voice, a ring of happy expectancy. Nor did she see the eager light vanish from Steve's face, leaving it grim.

"So he's coming back at last," Steve paused to light his pipe. "Where you in town today?"

Linda told him quietly of her luncheon with Diane, and she omitted the details, for suddenly Steve's apparent interest in her affairs seemed to change to indifference. He stared into space, not even listening as she described her meeting with the artist, and when, hurt and puzzled by his attitude, Linda rose and said good-night, he scarcely nodded, and didn't look up until she had left the room.

The August weather was unbearably hot when Linda and Steve moved into their new apartment located on Chicago's fashionable north side. Mary had returned from her eastern trip and she offered her services in helping Linda get settled in her new surroundings. Mary was thin and pale. Deep circles ringed her eyes and much of her vivaciousness was gone. Linda felt concern for Mary's welfare, and ventured a query. But Mary laughed away Linda's fears.

"It's just that I was too active this summer," she said, "after the mad rush of getting settled in our new home after Phil and I were married. After a good rest I'll be as good as new. This time next month I'll be a different person."

"Perhaps we'll all be different this time next month," Linda said. "Oh, if only we knew what was in store for each of us!"

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (Aries)—It will be a day of money matters today, for the ten-day period is favorable for financial gain. The evening hours after 9:45 p. m. suggest unusual caution to avoid sharp and severe disappointments resulting from unexpected situations.

April 20th and May 20th (Taurus)—After 10:45 a. m. a day of practical work and dealings with people of a conservative nature, but financial success is toward the end of the period. The evening hours after 9:45 p. m. suggest unusual caution to avoid sharp and severe disappointments resulting from unexpected situations.

May 21st and June 20th (Gemini)—The entire day with the exception of the period between 1:45 p. m. and 3:30 p. m. holds excellent influences for quickness of action. The favorable period favors correspondence, contacts with others, publishing, unusual pursuits.

June 21st and July 22nd (Cancer)—The entire day and until 6:30 p. m. favors ordinary and routine matters. This is especially true in connection with communications, correspondence and conferences. After 6:30 p. m. favors social and entertainment fields.

July 23rd and August 22nd (Leo)—An excellent day to put your best foot forward. The day favors consultations, financial interests, educational matters, experiments and sociability.

August 23rd and September 22nd (Virgo)—The entire day and evening does not especially favor new or important undertakings. An excellent day to stick to routine and finish those things already started.

September 23rd and October 22nd (Libra)—The influences operating today are such that may suddenly break up some existing conditions in your life. You may have to guard against a dogged determination to go ahead no matter what the outcome. Therefore, the day is not especially auspicious for changes or radical departure from routine.

October 23rd and November 21st (Scorpio)—During the entire day and until 9:07 p. m. financial efforts and actual finances may be wasted if you give in to a feeling of too lavish spending. After 9:07 p. m. favors social affairs.

Evelyn Keyes on Air Tonight

Atlanta Girl, Cary Grant in Hollywood Play

De Mille Gives Her First Chance on Radio; 11 Other Stars Billed.

Evelyn Keyes, the belle from Peachtree street whom Columbia Pictures has slated for stardom in 1942, makes her initial radio appearance tonight on Cecil B. de Mille's "Radio Theater."

Evelyn will be competing with enough Hollywood luminaries to make a radio milky way tonight.

EVELYN KEYES. Makes Radio Debut

Among them will be Cary Grant, Madeline Carroll, John Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Franchot Tone, Gregory Ratoff, Joe E. Brown, Claire Trevor, Joan Bennett, Brian Donlevy, Claude Rains, James Gleason. Quite an array for Monday night's radio audience.

Besides making her first appearance in such company, Miss Keyes was further honored in being cast by De Mille for a part on his program—considered the highest honor radio can give a movie star.

In Own Role.

She will play the role she created on the screen in the Cecil B. de Mille radio production of the hit comedy, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which will star Cary Grant in the role of the prizefighter who dies and yet doesn't, a role originally played by Robert Montgomery. "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" has been named by local movie critics as one of the 10 best films of 1941.

Playing in a De Mille production will be a home-coming for Evelyn, for it was into the great man's office that she burst in Hollywood one day five years ago to get her first part in movies. He liked her looks and cast her in his production of "The Buccaneer."

Claude Rains plays the part of "Mr. Jordan" in the original cast. The play is over the Columbia network, WGST in Atlanta, at 9 o'clock tonight.

Grant, as the prizefighter, is killed in an airplane crash, only to discover that his number has come up 50 years too soon. Mr. Jordan undertakes to escort him back to earth, so that he may return to his own body. This fails, however, when it is learned that Joe's body has been cremated. Thereupon Mr. Jordan takes him on a further search for a suitable body—a search that brings fantasy, romance, drama and laughter.

Orson Welles Casts Barrymore, O'Sullivan

John Barrymore, one of the profile, the front page and the great acting talent—and the beautiful Maureen O'Sullivan join Orson Welles tonight to perform in "The Happy Hypocrite," over WGST at 10 o'clock.

An amusing and purposeful allegory, "The Happy Hypocrite," presents Barrymore as Sir George Hell, a wealthy old reprobate living in the England of a long past day. Affiliated to a Russian dancer, he encounters and falls in love with a 16-year-old maid, played by Miss O'Sullivan.

Light Docket Listed For Murray Court Term

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. CHATSWORTH, Ga., Jan. 25.—Judge John C. Mitchell today drew grand and traverse juries to serve at the February term of Murray superior court which will convene here February 9. According to F. R. Kendrick, clerk of Murray superior court, this term of the court has one of the lightest dockets in many years.

RAF FIGHTERS ACTIVE.

FOLKSTONE, England, Jan. 25. (AP)—RAF fighter squadrons were more active over the Straits of Dover today than at any other time in the past two weeks and many attacks were believed to have been delivered in German-occupied France.

Six Big Stars on "Vox Pop" Show at 8

A year and a half after "Vox Pop" began pioneering in the idea that the question-and-answer technique of Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth could be of service to the nation, the program tonight brings six of Hollywood's best known personalities before the microphone. (WGST at 8 o'clock.)

Brian Donlevy, Joan Bennett, Franchot Tone, Gregory Ratoff, Joe E. Brown and Claire Trevor are to match wits and witticisms with Parks and Wally in the spirit of keeping America smiling—and showing Hollywood in war.

J. S. Wasney, Former U. P. Man Here, Dies

Ex-Southern News Editor Succumbs in Glendale, Maryland.

Joseph S. Wasney, 44, for four years southern news editor of United Press, with offices here, died yesterday in a Glendale (Md.) hospital of a heart attack, after a long illness.

He was in charge of the U. P. bureau here from 1936 until 1940, when he was transferred to Washington.

A native of Washington, he joined the U. P. in 1920 and was assigned to the Treasury Department. He later covered the house of representatives and in 1930 became manager of the Philadelphia U. P. bureau, serving there until he came to Atlanta.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Dixie and Jo-Claire, and his mother, Mrs. Rosa E. Wasney.

Funeral arrangements had not been announced late last night.

Services Are Held For W. A. Gravitt

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 25.—Services were held Friday afternoon at the Gainesville Mill church for Corporal Walter A. Gravitt, 24, who died at the Marine hospital at Parris Island, S. C., after a brief illness. The Rev. L. P. McNeal officiated, and burial was in Alta Vista cemetery.

Corporal Gravitt had been in the Marines for five years and had advanced to sergeant, but recently took a lower ranking in order to enter the air corps. He had undergone an operation at the hospital, later contracting pneumonia.

In addition to his wife, the former Miss Gussie Mae Smith, of Hall county, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. W. M. Gravitt, Gainesville; two brothers, James, Gainesville, and Lester, Atlanta; and three sisters, Mrs. K. C. Campbell and Mrs. Paul Tanner, Gainesville, and Mrs. E. H. Elliott, Atlanta.

Mrs. C. H. Conklin Dies at Age of 32

Mrs. C. H. Conklin, 32, of 308 South Main street in College Park, died yesterday in a private hospital after a short illness.

She is survived by her husband; two sons, Carl and Ronald; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murdoch; a sister, Mrs. Jewel Cox, and four brothers, Harley, Clifford, Jack and Eddie Murdoch. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Second Baptist church in College Park, with the Rev. D. W. Carter and the Rev. Tombs McGaughey officiating. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Miss Thompson Succumbs at 62

Miss Agnes Thompson, 62, of 957 St. Charles avenue, N. E., died in a private hospital yesterday after a long illness.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. P. A. Aicklen and Miss Anna Thompson, of Detroit, Mich., and two nieces, Mrs. Roy Bolock and Miss Hortense Lamont, both of Charlotte, Mich.

She had lived in Atlanta for 24 years and was a member of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, at Peachtree Chapel, with the Rev. John Moore Walker officiating. The body will be sent to Detroit for burial.

George A. Tomlinson, Rail Executive, Dies

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25.—(AP)—George A. Tomlinson, who rose from a 36-a-week police news reporter to president of the Allegheny Corporation, top holding company of the Van Swearingen railroad interests, died in California last night. He had been in failing health for two and a half years.

At the time of his death Tomlinson, who would have been 76 years old tomorrow, was chairman of the Pere Marquette Railroad and president of the Tomlinson Great Lakes Fleet.

PETER McDONNELL.
NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Peter McDonnell, 63, a partner in the Stock Exchange firm of McDonnell & Company, died last night. He was a retired member of the board of directors of the Chase National Bank and of the defunct Seaboard Bank of New York.

Mortuary
The infant son of Mrs. G. W. Young, of Smyrna, died yesterday at a private hospital. Other survivors include the grandparents, Mrs. O. B. Young, of Gray, and L. L. Deal, of Sandysville, Ga. Burial will be held in West View cemetery today.

CHARLES W. HARRIS.
Funeral services for Charles W. Harris, 86, who died Saturday night, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, with the Rev. Samuel F. Lowe officiating. Burial will be in a Valdosta, Ga., cemetery.

AT WORK AS USUAL.—Even though John Donaldson, auditor and C. P. A. at a Chicago hospital, is 95 years old today, he's still on the job and gets a bit peevish at retirement talk. He was an accountant in Chicago for 52 years before he took his present job, which he has held for 17 years.

Clarence I. White Succumbs at 67

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
BURFORD, Ga., Jan. 25.—Clarence I. White, 67, prominent in the furniture business in the southeast for 40 years, died early this morning in a Gainesville hospital where he was taken yesterday. He had been ill for several weeks.

He had lived in Buford for more than 45 years.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. J. Earl Simpson and Miss Mary White; two sons, George D. White and Colonel Edmondson White; his father, C. W. White; a sister, Mrs. Wilmer Fowler, and a grandson, James White Simpson.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Buford Baptist church, with the Rev. H. C. Whitener officiating. Burial will be in Buford cemetery.

British Officer, Ousted by Army For Hitting Nazi, Back in Action

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A British brigadier, G. Drake-Brockman, who was court-martialled from the British army for striking an abusive German air officer shot down in his area, has enlisted as a trooper in the Canadian army, it was revealed today.

The Sunday Express said the officer, a South African, commanded a tank brigade in Britain. His mother had been seriously injured in an air raid when he struck the German over the head with a stick.

Dismissed from the British army, he sought to leave to join the South African forces but was refused permission to leave the country. Only after Canadians worked more than a year were they able to wring permission for "this good tank soldier" to enlist in their forces, the newspaper said.

George J. Avent, 59, Bank Leader, Dies

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—George J. Avent, 59, president of the Florida National Bank of Jacksonville and a well-known figure in state banking circles, died at a hospital here today after a brief illness.

He was a director of the Florida National Bank of Ocala, the Florida Bank and Trust Company of West Palm Beach and the Florida National Bank here. He also was treasurer of the Florida Inland Navigation District, and formerly was a director of the Reserve City Bankers' Association. He had served several terms as director of the Jacksonville branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Radio's Mary Livingstone Faints During Program
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Actress Mary Livingstone, who has been ill with sinus trouble for a week, fainted as she read her last line in the Jack Benny radio program today.

Benny carried his wife off stage, where she was revived and taken to her Beverly Hills home. The comedian canceled his program last Sunday out of respect to the late Carole Lombard, with whom he had just made a picture.

To Georgia's Unsung Heroes

"Each man is a hero and an oracle to somebody . . ." EMERSON

The history of Georgia is studded with the names of men and women who have risen from the ranks to become leaders in their chosen fields. Every community has its outstanding citizens . . . those whose contributions set them apart from their neighbors.

Some save lives . . . invent machines . . . endow charitable institutions. Others write books . . . teach the young . . . preach the gospel. In so doing, they bring honor and fame to themselves, their community and their State.

To recognize these men and women whose accomplishments have been a potent factor in the development and growth of the State . . . to acquaint the future citizens of Georgia with them . . . Rich's is sponsoring a Diamond Jubilee Essay Contest for Georgia High School Students as part of its 75th Anniversary Celebration.

Open to all seniors in every city, county and private senior high school in Georgia, the contest is designed to produce interesting and informative word portraits of outstanding citizens in every county in Georgia . . . it is designed to reward the writers of the best essays with prizes of significant and lasting value, including a four-year college scholarship as the Grand Award.

A Thrifty Lotion To Do Double Duty

By Winifred Ware.

Simplicity and economy are important nowadays in our beauty routines. Appropriately, then, here's a time and money-saving preparation. It's a lotion which combines the functions of a night cream and powder base and which is being offered for several weeks at half its regular price.

This lotion can be used as a night cream by those who dislike going to bed all greased-up. Although this preparation is full of the needed oils for softening, soothing and smoothing the skin, it blends into the skin, leaving just a fresh, dewy look. Because it takes but a few seconds to apply it saves you precious minutes for other things.

This same lotion can be used in the morning as a make-up base. Apply it a little less liberally and blot off any excess with tissue. Now go ahead with your make-up which you'll find going on smoothly and evenly. You'll have the added satisfaction of knowing your face is being protected and softened during the day.

Many oily skins need lubricating at night, too, and they will find this lotion ideal for that purpose. Because of its lightness they will find it an excellent skin emollient, though they should not use it as a powder base.

This is a time-saving beauty preparation and will appeal to the modern, active woman's sense of economy, too, since it is now being offered at half its regular price. The regular $2 bottle which contains 12 ounces (and that's a lot of lotion) is now but $1.

I'll be glad to tell you where you can get it if you call me at Walnut 6565 or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Today's Charm Tip
For the Older Woman:
"Brains," it has been well said, "are the major ingredients in So, give your mind its daily beauty formula for age." workout.

Of course you recognize Irene Dunne, but did you know that some years ago she played right here in Atlanta in stock company at the old Forsyth Street theater? A flawless skin such as Irene Dunne's needs its share of attention, but even a dry skin can get sufficient care from the time and money-saving preparation mentioned below.

A Slim Waistline Promises Better Chance for Longevity

By Ida Jean Kain.

If your waistline has slipped more than three inches from what it was when you were a mere 25, take it as a sign that you are soft. To be in trim a woman must be able to claim a waist that measures six inches less than the bust circumference. And she is better off for a seven or eight-inch difference. A slim waist is healthy.

And while we are on the subject, a man's beltline should be five inches less than his chest. Life insurance tables, which can't afford to be wrong, reveal that when a man's waist measure equals that of his chest he is headed for trouble. And when his waist exceeds his chest by one inch, his chance at longevity is cut 10 percent. The long the beltline, the shorter the lifeline.

Those statistics are alarming, particularly when they apply to you personally. Waistline or beltline, it pays in fitness to keep this measurement trim. What it takes is a little exercise and the habit of good posture—pull up, and take yourself down a notch with these exercises.

First, stretch to make your midriff supple.

Position: Lying on back on floor, arms stretched straight up on floor overhead, legs straight down.

Movement: Cross the right leg over the left, reaching toes to floor beyond. At the same time continue to stretch up with right arm to give your midriff an extra tug. Then give your other side a transverse stretch. Continue for eight good stretches. Then flop and relax.

You can twist off inches with this exercise:

Position: Arms stretched up on floor overhead, left leg straight down on floor, right leg flexed and toes tucked under left knee.

Movement: Twisting at the waistline, touch knee to floor at far left, pointing knee down hard. Do the same exercise with the other leg, repeating for eight counts and later on 16. Perform slowly. This not only firms the waist but helps to tone the abdominal muscles.

Finish with this rolling exercise:

Position: Lie on back on floor, arms straight out on floor at shoulder level. Have knees flexed and feet held slightly clear.

Movement: Keep shoulders and arms on floor as you roll legs from side to side and touch alternate thighs to floor.

The leaflet "Waistlines and Beltlines," contains a set of illustrated exercises for men and women. Enclose large stamped return envelope with your request to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

MY DAY: Varied Labor Groups Meet for Conference

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Friday—Yesterday afternoon, Dr. Paul R. Jacobsen, the director of the Colgate University study group, brought his ten honor juniors to tea with me, since their period of study here is ending. This year's program has been revised to give attention simultaneously to public administration and political control, especially as related to national defense.

I always enjoy this group. They come, of course, largely from the northeastern states, but I imagine their backgrounds are as varied as those of any other group of young people. As I looked at their faces yesterday, I realized that, in all probability, their interests were as varied. They all had had a stimulating experience here and that is what we want all young people to have in the capital of their country. It should be a stirring place.

We had another thrilling newsreel last night for some guests. I can recommend the movie: "The Corsican Brothers," if you want to forget what is going on around you for a little while. Everyone listened and watched breathlessly until the very end. The Office of Civilian Defense has called a small labor conference today, through its labor advisory committee. The conference consists of ten representatives from the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

It was valuable in that it gave to all the officials and staff of the Office of Civilian Defense suggestions of what might be accomplished, and information on conditions which exist in the field of labor participation in civilian defense.

I hope that, out of this, may come a great deal more knowledge of the standards of living and actual conditions which exist as a result of changes brought about by defense needs. On this level I think we need to attempt to collect the knowledge which exists in the field of management, as represented by war production, and the labor interests in the government and industry. By joint action, we may be able to forestall situations which are now causing great hardship.

I could not help thinking, as we all met in the state dining room at the White House, that Lincoln's portrait looking down upon us was a good symbol of the unity which will exist in the ranks of labor itself, but in the ranks of employer and employee. If unity is important for a nation, we must realize that it cannot really exist unless we can bring about unity between the groups which make up that nation.

Modern Diet Needs Boost in Calcium

By Dr. William Brady.

I said the other day that vites means, among other things, an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains, the resiliency of the untamed animal or the primitive savage.

What do I know about primitive savages? Only what I read in books, newspapers, scientific journals and the like. One thing I know is that the primitive savage or the human being who has never been taught by an "expert" how to breathe, breathes more efficiently than the individual who has been instructed or trained in such matters. The untutored individual breathes as a race horse or a draft horse or a greyhound or a deer breathes, mainly with the belly. The individual who has received instruction in breathing, from a music master, say, or from an uneducated physical trainer, breathes mainly with the chest and generally handicaps his or her breathing efficiently by voluntarily opposing or restraining the natural function of the breathing muscle, the diaphragm.

Moreover savages or members of races less cultured than our own, races or peoples to whom our "refinements" have not been introduced, generally have better posture and better carriage than we have. They certainly have better teeth, jaws and facial development than we have, and less disease and suffering with dental caries, pyorrhea, nose and throat disorders, sinus troubles. If this seems at all incredible to you, read "Nutrition and Physical Degeneration" (Hoeber), by Weston A. Price, D. D. S.

A kind of hackneyed reply to the teaching that we should store natural food to its proper place in our every-day diet is the sniffling observation that of course we are too ladylike to eat the crude, coarse foods our early ancestors had eat. This is the bunk. Whatever our early ancestors had to eat scarcely matters. What all good nutrition authorities say is that the whole wheat flour and the crude unrefined brown sugar or saw sugar and molasses which together yielded more than half of the calories of the diet of Americans a hundred years ago and incidentally about 600 international units of thiamin (B1) and proportionate amounts of the other entities of vitamin B complex, should be replaced, at least part of the refined white flour and refined white sugar and syrups which together yield more than half of the calories of the modern American diet, but only about 50 international units of thiamin (B1) and proportionate amounts of the other entities of the B complex.

The nutrition authorities of the day are all in accord in saying further that the diet of men, women and children today is nearly always deficient in calcium (and phosphorus, which occurs with calcium in most foods containing much calcium) and sunshine vitamin D, which is essential for the assimilation, retention and utilization of calcium and phosphorus in the body. In a later talk we'll suggest how to correct these fundamental faults of modern diet without reverting to any monkey business.

Allergic Rash.
Broken out with rash resembling prickly heat, but it lasted many months. Sent for your pamphlet, "Relief for Allergy," and three days after beginning p. c. improvement was evident, and inside of a week the trouble cleared up and has not returned. Had tried numerous internal and external remedies, but obtained no relief until I got the suggestion from your column. MRS. S. A. C.

Answer—Thanks. Copy of the pamphlet available on request—enclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Yes! Frills in the form of eyelet embroidered edging around tops of sleeves and again around the top of the dirndl skirt's hem soften the lines of the shirt-and-skirt costume which all America is wearing. Wife Is Wise To Demand Attention

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I have been married almost two years. I love my husband very much, but the trouble is, he is not good to me. He makes an average salary, but he does not share any of it with me. He likes to go out but does not want me to go with him. He always makes some excuse. When we are out together he never pays me any attention. I know that I am not that unattractive, because other men are always nice to me, and I am popular with the women, too. I am going to be a mother soon, but my husband gives that no thought at all. There are two girls who are supposed to be my friends, but I think they are really my husband's, according to the way they act. I do not like them, but I have to be nice to them on his account. Do you think he could love me and treat me as he does? I have tried to be nice and thoughtful, but he will not let me.

UNHAPPY WIFE.
The trouble with you is that you have been too nice. I think there are some instances when a wife should be nice to her husband's friends, but in your case I think it is beside the point. By acting this way, he will continue to see them and continue to make your life miserable, and it will evidence your approval of his actions. You can be polite to them, but you do not have to overdo it.

If a woman does not make some demands upon a man, he will, nine times out of 10, never think she needs any attention or money. If he loves you he has a very poor way of showing it, and especially now with your baby on the way. For the present, that is, until after the baby comes, I would not make an issue of the situation. Afterwards, you can begin to stand your own ground and let him know that you do not approve of his actions. Adopt a different attitude. Do not be so considerate of him. The best method for you to employ is to take the upper hand in things. He knows that what he says and does worries you. Turn the tables on him, and give him something to ponder over, such as your indifference. It is a very unfortunate situation and one which will require a great deal of diplomacy on your part, for if you love him, you do not want to lose him, but you will have to bring him back to his senses.

Dear Dixie:

I am 15 and he is 17. I love him and can't help it. He lives about 2 1/2 miles from me. How can I win him? He has never really asked me for a date, he has taken me home from church several times. He is so sweet and nice I cannot help loving him, although he goes with other girls. One of the girls he goes with says she does not like him, but I believe she does. I have not seen him since the Sunday before Christmas. He comes to our school sometime, but does not pay any attention to me. I want to win him back, so please tell me what to do.

LONELY AND BLUE.

The next time you see him, why not ask him to come by to see you some time. Perhaps he is the timid type and is waiting for you to invite him to come. The fact that he has brought you home from church several times, proves that he is interested in you and would like to be with you. I do not think you give him any encouragement and all the boys want to think the girls are anxious to see them. Do not make your invitation too obvious, but just be casual and friendly about it. Do not discuss him with the girl you mentioned for she will tell him you are running after him.

LET BOYS DO THEIR OWN ARGUING

Dear Dixie:

I am a girl 14 and am very much in love with a certain boy, and I think he loves me from the way he acts. There is another boy who likes me very much and the two of them argue about me all the time. Can you tell me what to do?

Let them argue if they want to and do not try to dramatize the situation by trying to settle their affairs. If you love one of them and he loves you, why not go along with him and not worry about the other boy too much? Be nice to him, for remember there is safety in numbers, but do not let their arguments worry you.

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of intimate glimpses into the lives of Atlanta debutantes, whose names have made social history this winter.)

By SALLY FORTI.

• • • MARION KNOWLES can cook beautiful steaks! (Take note, swains!) This is worth remembering. This chic debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knowles confesses a fondness for culinary activity. Next to steaks, she prefers cooking potatoes—and Sally hears that she can prepare them "any style."

Marion has a deep appreciation for art, and spent the past year studying "color and line" at the High Museum. She is an accomplished pianist, and has studied music for ten years! She owns a fine repertoire of immortal selections composed by the great composers.

Dances and parties appeal strongly to the frivolous side of Marion's nature, and she is a sought-after figure at social festivities. Slender and graceful of stature, this attractive deb is noted for her beautiful naturally curly reddish brown hair which she wears in a becoming short bob made distinctive by brief bangs.

Marion completed her education at Temple School in New York, and was extremely popular as a debutante of the past season.

• • • HOUSEWIVES of Mobile, Ala., responded generously to a call from nearby Brookley Field for the temporary use of their sewing machines. This is an Army Air Depot but the machines were wanted for war relief work.

Darning and mending at Camp Blanding, in the adjoining state, gets a lift by the Button Hole Club, of Starke, Fla. Lessons in making these repairs will be taught the soldiers, if desired, although club members stand ready to do all such sewing brought into the USO service clubs.

• • • MEMBERS of the Wednesday Afternoon Club, of Toccoa, have decided upon a novel idea to collect funds for the Red Cross war relief.

Mrs. Homer Streit, the president, announced that each member will give a party and invite four guests, who in turn will donate 25 cents each to the war relief fund. Guests will be asked by members to give a party with the same arrangements, so that the project can be carried on indefinitely. Money collected will be turned over to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Doyle Ramsay, secretary of the Toccoa Chapter of the Red Cross, and Fred Hayes, the chairman, have expressed themselves on the project, saying that it was a worthy and appreciated undertaking.

• • • THE hundredth anniversary of Bedford Hall, the beautiful home of Mrs. Lucia Key Moye, of Cuthbert, was celebrated at a tea at which Mrs. Moye entertained last week. The colonial home was built by Mrs. Moye's grandfather, Jesse Bibb Key, of Bedford, Va., for his 16-year-old bride, Mary Bailey, of Randolph county, Georgia, and named for his former home in Virginia. The house was completed in 1842 and except for a few minor changes is as Mr. Key built it, being one of the show places of Cuthbert. Mr. Key lived here as did his son, Lucius Key, with his family, and it is now occupied by Mrs. Moye.

At the celebration the guests were invited into the parlor, where they were served a fruit plate. Then they were taken into the dining room where a lace-covered table was centered with silver candelabra holding burning tapers, and arrangements of white hyacinths flanked either side. The birthday cake held 100 lighted tapers, each representing a decade in the 100 years since the building of Bedford Hall.

What You Ought To Know About Your Red Cross

In all of these 3,700 Red Cross chapters now, the membership is actively engaged in raising the war emergency fund of $50,000,000 for which the American Red Cross is making an urgent appeal.

Relieves Distress From Monthly FEMALE WEAKNESS

Which Makes You Tired, Nervous! Hundreds of thousands of women who suffer distress of functional monthly disturbances—headache, backache, cramps, distress of "irregularities," a bloated feeling, so tired, weak—have obtained wonderful relief from such symptoms by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound Tablets (with added iron).

Taken regularly—Pinkham's Tablets relieve monthly pain and distress. They help build up resistance against it. Follow label directions. WORTH TRYING!

During the last World War the American Red Cross produced $100,000,000 worth of goods. Relief was administered by the American Red Cross in belligerent countries to the amount of $150,000,000. When the war was over, the American Red Cross launched a tremendous peace-time program to assist in the readjustment of the American nation during the post-war period.

MRS. JAMES L. JOHNSTON JR.

Miss Cooper Becomes Bride Of James Lamb Johnston Jr.

Of interest to a host of friends in Georgia, North and South Carolina is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cooper, of Atlanta, formerly of Asheville, N. C., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Cooper, to James Lamb Johnston Jr., of Gainesville and Atlanta, which took place in the manse of the First Presbyterian church at Moss Point, Miss., on January 17.

The blonde loveliness of the bride was accentuated by a smart model of poudre blue crepe with clips of ice blue rhinestones; her accessories were of black patent and she wore a purple-throated orchid.

Mrs. Johnston is the sister of Mrs. Paul G. Knight, of Stokesdale, N. C.; J. Milton Cooper, of Elkin, N. C.; William P. Cooper, of Asheville, N. C.; Bruce and Joe Cooper, of Atlanta. The bride's mother is the former Miss Maggie Mae Rogers, of Kannapolis, N. C., and her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. C. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. John Franklin Cooper and John Franklin Cooper, of China Grove, N. C.

Mrs. Johnston attended high school in Asheville, and the Woman's College at the University of North Carolina, at Greensboro, N. C. She is a pledge of Beta Sigma Phi, international sorority.

Mr. Johnston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lamb Johnston, of Gainesville, Ga., and is the brother of Mrs. John Cheney Thompson, of Decatur, Miss Helen Johnston, of Decatur, and Misses Jessica and Jean Johnston, of Gainesville. The groom's mother is the former Miss Elisabeth Deal and his maternal grandparents are the late Rev. and Mrs. John A. Deal, missionaries to western North Carolina.

Mr. Johnston is the paternal grandson of the late James Lamb Johnston and Mrs. Johnston, of Atlanta, and is descended from the Johnston and Williams' families of South Carolina. He was graduated from the Gainesville High school, attended the University of Georgia Evening school and was associated with First National Bank of Atlanta before being called into active duty in the Second Division of the Atlanta Naval Reserve.

Mrs. Howard See, re-elected president of the Young Women's Christian Association, will preside at the annual dinner meeting this evening at 6:30 o'clock to be held in Rich's tearoom.

"The Place of Women in Defense" is the topic chosen by Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, national board member and chairman of the Y. W. C. A. world emergency fund, for her talk. Dr. Vernon S. Broyles, of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, will give the invocation; Mrs. William M. Pate will sing; a brief and entertaining analysis of finances will be presented by Miss Ethel Moore, treasurer, and Mrs. M. H. Elder, acting chairman of nominating committee, will introduce newly elected board members.

A feature of the program will be the sound, color movie, "Growing With Atlanta," depicting "Y" activities. Miss Eleanor Jackson, of Carrollton, Ga., who plays the movie lead, will be among guests of honor, as will Miss Anna Mulcahy, representative business girl,

MRS. ERNEST MONROE BROWN JR.

Mrs. Brown is the former Miss Louise Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett John Lindsey, her marriage having taken place last month in Glenn Memorial Methodist church. Mr. and Mrs. Brown reside at 2177 North Decatur Road.

Agnes Scott Club To Meet Today

The Decatur Agnes Scott Alumnae Club will meet at 3 o'clock today in the Anna Young Alumnae house on South Candler street, in Decatur.

Miss Emily Dexter, professor of psychology at Agnes Scott, will discuss "Our State's Mental Hygiene Program."

Mrs. Armand Hendee, president, will preside and a number of important and interesting items will be brought up for discussion.

Mrs. Hermon Martin is chairman of the hostess committee for the afternoon, and her committee will include Mesdames S. G. Stukes, C. W. Dickenson, Henry Robinson, Jerry Taylor, Frederick Walker and Miss Vella Marie Behn.

Personals

Film Group Donates $50 to Red Cross.
At the annual birthday party of the Atlanta Better Films' Committee, held at the Ansley hotel on Thursday, the members voted unanimously to donate $50 from the organization's treasury to American Red Cross activities. Mrs. O. D. Bartlett presided at the meeting.

Guests were seated, according to their birth dates, at tables decorated in a manner symbolizing each month of the year. A beautiful birthday cake, decorated with crossed American flags, a large "V," and three dolls and a dash, was presented to Mrs. Bartlett by Mrs. Carolyn Seivers.

Mrs. S. D. Katz was in charge of the distribution of birthday gifts. Souvenir emblems, "Remember Pearl Harbor," "Victory" and tiny "Statues of Liberty," were presented to each guest.

Mrs. Medora Field Perkinson, Mrs. Jessie Watts Davenport, Mrs. Swift Tyler and Mrs. Jefferson Place, a former member, now living in Jacksonville, were special guests.

Nazis' Winter Line Virtually Wiped Out, Russians Report

MOSCOW, Monday, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's winter line has been virtually wiped out from end to end and mopping up operations are progressing rapidly in a vast triangle southwest of Moscow from the area of Smolensk to Kursk, the Russians reported tonight.

The midnight communiqué announced Soviet forces driving westward had recaptured Nellovo, on the Moscow-Riga railroad 170 miles northwest of the capital.

Weather-hardened Red troops, making the most of the severest winter conditions experienced by continental Europe in many a decade, were declared further to have occupied 54 additional populated centers in their great uninterrupted advance.

Cleaning Up

Russian sources said clean-up operations were in full swing in the area east of a 270-mile line running from the vicinity of Smolensk, heretofore Hitler's main headquarters, to Orel and Kursk.

The Moscow region and that around Tula, 200 miles south of the capital, have been completely freed of Germans, these informants said. They added the Kalinin sector, 90 miles northwest of Moscow similarly is being purged.

The extreme cold penetrating all central Europe experienced in Crimea but the picture there was obscure.

(The German radio said the Russians were repulsed in an attempt to land 200 men in the rear of Nazi troops encircling Sevastopol, the big Russian Black sea naval base.

1,200 Landed

(The Rome radio told another Soviet sortie in the Crimea, where it said the Russians "took advantage of the fact the great landing around the northeastern Crimean coast is frozen over, and managed to land about 1,200 men." It added, however, they were taken prisoner by the Germans.

Allied sources in London said reports from Vichy placed Nazi losses on the Russian front so far in January at more than 500,000. More than half this number was said to have been victims of typhus, pneumonia, frostbite and exposure.

Nellovo is 50 miles west of Rzhnev, Soviet-encircled northern anchor of the shattered German front before Moscow, and was bypassed in the Russian drive last week to Kholm.

The midnight communiqué announced the sinking of a 5,000-ton German transport in the Barents sea and the Red air force was credited with destruction of 39 German planes yesterday. Russian losses were placed at 11 planes.

Deepening wedges were reported steadily driven by Red forces from Kholm southwest to Toropetz, a broad, 50-mile line described as "the spinal column of the entire eastern front."

Thus the Germans were pressing a vast double pincer aimed at flanking the Germans south of Leningrad and in the Smolensk area.

Dionne Quint Examined by 2 Specialists

'No Serious Lesion' Found, Business Manager Says of Marie.

CALLANDER, Ont., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Yvonne, Annette, Cecile and Emilie fledgling with curiosity just outside the door of a bedroom in their nursery here today while two orthopedic specialists examined Marie, smallest of the Sisters Dionne, for suspected muscular atrophy of one leg.

The results of the examination, by Dr. John Laing McDonald, of Toronto, appointed by the Ontario provincial government, and Dr. Roma Amyot, of Montreal, called in by the Dionne family physician, were not announced.

Keith Munro, business manager of the seven-year-old quintuplets, said afterward, however, he had been authorized by Dr. McDonald to announce "no serious lesion" had been found.

The quintuplets took the arrival of the strangers in their stride. They frolicked with the party for a while until Marie, without protest, was separated from the others and taken into the bedroom.

When the examination was ended the children, Marie included, played together as usual and spent some time outside in the spring-like air, skating on their playground rink.

Biddle to Reward Atlanta Inmates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Inmates of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta who voluntarily increased their production of defense articles more than 100 per cent in 1941 will be given a special "award of merit" by Attorney General Biddle next Wednesday.

The attorney general will go to Atlanta for an inspection tour of the institution which is specializing in turning out canvas products for the armed services. The prisoners work 46 hours weekly and are paid a small sum on a piece-work basis. Last month they produced nearly 1,000,000 pounds of canvas goods.

CLARKSTON DEBATERS—Could Georgia exist independently if it had a wall a mile high all around the state? These youthful debaters at Clarkston Elementary school will thrash out the problem February 10 in a "Georgia Day" program at their school. They are in the sixth grade, taught by Mrs. D. B. Sinclair. Australia Asks Part in Empire War Council

Invaded Nation Appeals for Planes, Ships, Pacific Aid.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Monday, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Imperiled Australia delivered a new, plain-spoken demand on London today for a direct vote in imperial war councils as the Japanese, apparently in steadily rising strength, expanded footholds on Australian soil against the commonwealth's outnumbered defenders.

The war cabinet, which had sat through the weekend, followed up its second appeal to London and Washington—for planes and ships to support its own marshalled fighting power now that invasion has hit Australian shores—with a frank communication to Prime Minister Churchill.

The message, reflecting the urgency Australia repeatedly has stressed in appeals for help in her self-defense, contained two points—first, a strong request for the immediate formation of an empire war council in London and, second, a call for an Allied war council to direct basic strategy in the Pacific.

The Japanese, meanwhile, were on at least three islands in the Bismarck archipelago and Solomon islands, northeast of the big, half Dutch-half British island of New Guinea.

War Minister Francis Forde announced that Australian militia—in action against an alien invader for the first time in Australia's 154-year history—and supporting units of the Australian imperial forces were fighting "magnificently" on Rabaul peninsula, on the island of New Britain.

The Australians evidently had given up the city of Rabaul, the island's capital and chief port, in order to conserve their strength.

Forde said land and air forces had been pitted against the Japanese in a heavy battle raging since Friday among the hills back of the city, but that troops had not been asked to make a stand on exposed beaches because of enemy warships within the harbor.

The defenders now have pushed their line across the western end of the peninsula, but there is every indication that the Japanese are being constantly reinforced. One dispatch said 17 Japanese vessels had been observed and that the Australian defending force evidently was overwhelmingly outnumbered.

"Shortly and bluntly," declared Forde in an appeal for Allied help in the Pacific, "it is Japan or us."

Wholesale Arrests Sweeping Europe

New reports of wholesale arrests, ruthless executions and drastic attempts to hold Germany conquered Europe quiet under its Nazi master were heard yesterday.

These reports from the British radio, Swiss radio, from Switzerland and unoccupied France listed 400 persons arrested and 34 executed or sentenced to death.

The most drastic German action was reported in Rumania where, Swiss sources said, 150 Rumanians were arrested for opposing the government, and in Norway where, the British radio heard by CBS said, 250 men were arrested and three sentenced to death for anti-Nazi activity.

36 Died in Sinking, 5 Survivors Relate

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Thirty-six men died in the flames enveloping a Norwegian tanker as the result of a torpedo attack by a submarine in the western Atlantic recently, it became known tonight with the arrival of five survivors, who were on the tanker's bridge when the attack came.

After 15 hours in an open boat, the five were picked up by a British freighter and brought here, the port to which they were heading to join a convoy when the submarine sank their ship. One of the dead was a Canadian.

Governor Delivers Talk at Valley Forge

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The Governor of Georgia said today America needs "the courage and determination of Washington's troops" in this war.

The Governor spoke at the 19th annual Georgia state exercises in Washington Memorial chapel. The program was delayed 15 minutes when the Governor's car broke down on the way here from Philadelphia.

Sheriff J. C. "Mott" Aldredge was reported "resting comfortably" last night by attaches of Piedmont hospital, where he was taken yesterday morning.

Close Defense Unit To Guard Atlantic Coast

Two Service Branches To Maintain Land, Sea, Air Patrols.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A joint statement from Army and Navy headquarters here disclosed today that the two service branches had established "a closely coordinated defensive and offensive network system" to protect America's eastern seaboard from enemy attack.

Lack of complete Navy-Army liaison at Hawaii was criticized by President Roosevelt's special investigation committee as a cause of the Pearl Harbor disaster December 7.

The joint statement issued here said that land, sea and air patrols were directed jointly by a command triumvirate consisting of Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the eastern Army forces; Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commanding of the North Atlantic naval coastal front; and Brigadier General Arnold N. Krogstad, commanding the First Air Force.

"Through elaborately prepared methods of liaison they are available to each other 24 hours a day," the statement said, "and the forces available to them mesh into unified action within a matter of seconds on the receipt of an alert or any activity by enemy surface or air forces along the Atlantic coast."

"This arrangement has been in force for some time and insures close co-ordination of these services with definite objectives in view."

The statement said that General Drum, Admiral Andrews and General Krogstad met frequently to perfect co-ordination at a secret installation in metropolitan New York which acts as a nerve center and operations base for the joint far-ranging patrols.

"Details of the plan must still continue to be secret, but the comforting thought for men and women in American homes along the Atlantic seaboard is contained in this account of close and continuous co-operation between all defending Army, Navy and Air Forces," the statement added.

Uruguay Hands Passports to Envoys

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Uruguay quickly gave effect to her rupture of relations with the Axis today by presenting passports to the Japanese, German and Italian diplomats and at the same time notifying her own representatives in the Axis countries to leave those territories immediately.

Fernin Carlos Yeregui, chief of protocol, personally presented the German minister, Otto Langmann, and the Italian minister, Count Vittorio Emanuele Bonarelli de Castel Bompiano, with passports for themselves and their staffs, and he sent notification of the rupture to Genichiro Onorri, charge d'affaires of the Japanese legation, who is in Buenos Aires.

Foreign Minister Alberto Guani at the Pan-American conference in Rio de Janeiro last night, was unanimously approved by the cabinet in a 2-1-2-hour session.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Britain was said today to have decided against producing rubber synthetically to replace lost Malayan rubber sources because shipping space is needed to import other needed materials and because of the high cost to start production.

City in Jersey Was Pioneer in Defense Work

Organization Is Model, Visitor From Maplewood Declares.

Bombs bursting over London long before the attack on Pearl Harbor awakened the citizens of Maplewood, N. J., to the need for civilian defense in America, Arthur L. Stephens, a Maplewood visitor in Atlanta, said yesterday.

Stephens is supervisor of agencies of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

The result of Maplewood's early realization of the menace to Americans was the creation of a civilian defense organization in that city of 23,000 which is a model for other cities, he said.

Maplewood's civilian defense, Stephens explained, is centered round the American Legion post there. Months before Pearl Harbor, Legionnaires and volunteers secured an inventory of each home in the city, listing occupants according to age, sex, automobiles owned, knowledge of first aid and willingness to serve as air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen and policemen.

The Legion then inaugurated pistol and rifle practice, physical training and military drills. When the United States entered the war, the Legion immediately established a 24-hour patrol along the ridge of the Orange mountains. Like civilian guards here, Stephens reported that Maplewood sentinels are still furnishing their own equipment, including field glasses and uniforms.

The Maplewood defense council has also established air raid signals over its fire department siren system, after long experimentation. Many sirens tried and many factory whistles used failed to spread the alarm far enough.

Schools in Maplewood have been stocked with emergency food, and, as the result of long practice, air raid drills are commonplace to Maplewood school children.

In schools and numerous other places movies of London air raids have been shown, with a London baby, Constable Scott, as commentator. Stephens advises Atlantans to secure the services of Constable Scott and his films by all means, if possible. Scott, he said, is a veteran of 100 air raids and knows his incendiary and demolition bombs as well as his ABC's.

In Maplewood hotels, said Stephens, instructions as to what to do in case of an air raid are to be found in every room.

Maplewood is a residential city, about 10 miles from Newark.

Britain Ready For Showdown Over Churchill

Press Unanimous in Demands for Changes in Cabinet.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The strange spectacle of Communists and socialists with Winston Churchill has shown scant patience—warning the prime minister against intrigues within his own conservative party to unseat him, unfolded tonight as the cabinet debated the three-day war debate in commons.

As time approached for the showdown between Churchill and his critics, the press, without a dissenting voice, called for new faces in the cabinet, creation of some form of imperial war council to satisfy Australian demands, concentration of all war production under a single head and assurances of greater effort in the western Pacific region.

From almost every critic came assurances Churchill never was more popular personally, but there was the equally widespread feeling, in the unvarnished words of one editorial, that "our war machine still carries too many duds and deadbeats."

Varied Reactions.

Australia's pleas for quick help and a greater voice in the empire's war strategy brought varied reactions, including dismay in some quarters.

"I hate to see the dominion's premier (John Curtin) appealing simultaneously to the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Britain," Beverly Baxter, a conservative member of parliament, commented in a newspaper article.

"It breaks tradition of a century and cuts the cord of unity. I am sorry Mr. Curtin has seen fit to make a direct appeal to Washington."

The widely read Reynolds News suggested Churchill's defense against criticisms of setbacks on the Pacific ocean front will be made easier by "America's frank admission of the failure of her Pearl Harbor chiefs" because, it said, "it has been an open secret that our own setbacks were in large measure due to the absence of promised support from America."

Vote of Confidence.

"This fact," it added, "explains why the Malayan cause was left open to Japanese attack and was partly responsible for the lack of protection for the Prince of Wales and the Repulse."

Churchill's decision to ask for a vote of confidence if his government were challenged gained significance through reports Conservative wheel horses were trying to dissuade him from such a course.

One columnist, referring to what he called an "ultimatum" from the Conservatives, declared that he might "become again a man with a public and no party" if he rejected the threat and "like Chamberlain, a man with a party and no public," if he accepted it.

HAPPY—William F. Keenzie, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Keenzie, of 1759 Evans drive, S. W., wrote his parents last week that the boys in Hawaii, where he is stationed, are "happy now because they're on the jump."

Keenzie's father, a guard at the Quartermaster Corps offices in the Hurt building, served in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and in France.

Parley Scheduled By Women Voters

Mrs. James Selva, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, yesterday announced the annual meeting of the league will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Georgian Terrace hotel. A luncheon at 12:30 o'clock will feature "The Local Spotlight" and will deal with Atlanta governmental departments and their relation to national defense.

Guest speakers will be Well-born Ellis, administrator of the Fulton County Welfare department; J. Lee Harne, recreation director for the city of Atlanta; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city superintendent of schools, and Dr. Rufus F. Payne, of the Fulton county health department.

Work To Start On Airdrome At Gainesville

$344,000 Airport Expansion Is Slated To Begin by February 12.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 25.—Work upon the enlarging of Gainesville's municipal airport will begin not later than February 12, according to City Manager Fred Roark, who has received word from the Civil Aeronautics Authority that bids will be opened on February 2 and work start 10 days later.

Cost of the project will be $344,000, the money having been allocated several months ago. The plans originally approved by the authority were found to cost about $400,000 because of the necessary grading, Roark said, and it was found necessary to revise the plans by eliminating some of the grading before bids could be received.

Plans call for two runways of 500 by 4,200 feet each and, under the appropriation, they will be hard surfaced a width of 150 by 4,000 feet. The labor cost is estimated at more than $100,000, it was stated, which will be spent in this community.

The enlarged airport will be located where the present one is, on land adjoining the Southern railway just beyond the Gainesville Cotton Mills, but will take in considerably more land than the present field.
